AN EXPLANATION OF THE

MAP OF THE CITY AND LIBERTIES

(SEE VOLUME FOUR.)

OF PHILADELPHIA.

[This Map, with the "Explanation," was published in 1774, and it has been thought proper to reprint the same in connection with other papers and documents relating to the Land Department.]

THE AUTHOR TO THE SUBSCRIBERS.

GENTLEMEN,

It was not altogether for the little benefit which may arise to myself, that induced me to publish this work, as it is well known it would have been more beneficial to myself and family not to have done it; but through the persuasion of many respectable gentlemen of this province, and your generously subscribing for the encouragement thereof; and my being fully convinced of the benefit it would be to the public in general, and particularly to the descendants of those whose forefathers became purchasers of lands in the province of Pennsylvania; these were the reasons, save a desire I had to give the public a full description of the city and liberties, and shew in what right the city lots and liberty lands are held.

And notwithstanding the insinuations of some of the Proprietary officers are, that the intention of this work is to cause confusion and contention among the people of this province, &c., I can with truth declare, that I know but few whose property it affects; and that was occasioned when people applied for their rights; the surveyor laying them on lands long since surveyed and patented to others, in order (as I apprehend) for the better securing to themselves the lands formerly reserved for the purchasers not then come over. Unless the heirs of those who became purchasers of land in this province, should be so unreasonable as to apply for and recover the estates purchased and paid for by their forefathers of the proprietaries:—This indeed may, perhaps, effect such who have heretofore endeavored to keep those purchases concealed.

Notwithstanding I have it not in my power to return thanks to the Surveyor-General, &c., for their kind assistance in this work, as in such cases hath been customary; yet I think it consists of as much truth as any thing of the kind that hath heretofore been published.——And should you be of the same opinion when you come to examine it, and find it to answer your expectations, so as to meet with your approbation and further encouragement; it then answers the end intended.

Although there is much more published than what was first proposed, or by me intended; yet should any gentleman think that it ought to be augmented, and incline to improve and continue the same; may be furnished with ample materials, by applying to,

Gentlemen,

Your most obedient,

Humble servant,

JOHN REED.

AN EXPLANATION &c.

A Copy of a Release from Mr. Penn to One of the First Adventurers.

This indenture, made the —— day of ——— in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ———— and in the ———— year of the reign of king Charles II. over England, between William Penn, of Warminghurst, in the county of Sussex, esq; of the one part, and ———— of ———— of the other part: Whereas king Charles II. by his letters patent under the great seal of England, bearing date the fourth day of March, in the three and thirtieth year of his reign, for the considerations therein mentioned, hath given and granted unto the said William Penn, his heirs and assigns, all that tract or part of land in America, with the islands therein contained and thereunto belonging, as the same is bounded on the east by Delaware river, from twelve miles distance northward of Newcastle town, to the three and fortieth degree of northern latitude; and extendeth westward five degrees in longitude; and is bounded on the south, by a circle drawn at twelve miles distance from Newcastle aforesaid; northwards and westwards, to the beginning of the fortieth degree of northern latitude; and then, by a strait line westward, to the limit of longitude above-mentioned; together with divers great powers, pre eminences, authorities, royalties, franchises and immunities; and hath erected the said tract of land into a province or signory, by the name of Pennsylvania, in order to the establishing of a colony and plantation in the same: And hath thereby also further granted unto the said William Penn, his heirs and assigns, from time to time, power and licence to assign, alien, grant, demise, or enfeoff, such parts and parcels of the said province or tract of land, as he or they shall think fit, to such person or persons as shall be willing to purchase the same in fee-simple, fee-tail, or for term of life or years, to be holden of the said William Penn, his heirs and assigns, as of the signory of Windsor, by such services, customs, and rents, as shall seem fit to the said William Penn, his heirs or assigns, and not mediately of the said king, his heirs and successors, notwithstanding the statute of Quia emptores terrarum, made in the reign of king Edward I. Now this indenture witnesseth, that the said William Penn, as well for and in consideration of the sum of ———— sterling, monies to him in hand paid by the said ———— the receipt whereof he the said William Penn doth hereby acknowledge, and thereof, and of every part thereof, doth acquit and discharge the said ———— his executors and administrators, as of the rents and services herein after reserved, Hath aliened, granted, bargained, sold, released and confirmed, and by these presents doth alien, grant, bargain, sell, release and confirm unto the said ———— in his actual possession, (now being, by virtue of a bargain and sale to him thereof, made for one whole year by indenture, bearing date the day next before the date of these presents, and by force of the statute for transferring of uses into possession) and to his heirs and assigns, the full and just proportion and quantity of ———— acres of land, (every acre to be admeasured and computed according to the dimensions of acres mentioned and appointed in and by the statute made in the three and thirtieth year of the reign of king Edward I.) situate, lying, and being within the said tract of land, or province of Pennsylvania; the said ———— acres to be allotted and set out in such places or parts of the said tract, or province, and in such manner, and at such time or times as are by certain concessions or constitutions, bearing date the eleventh day of July last past, and signed, sealed, and executed, by and between the said William Penn, on the one part, and the said ———— and other purchasers of lands within the said tract or province, of the other part, are agreed, limited and appointed, or hereafter to be signed, sealed, and executed, by and between the same parties shall be agreed, limited, and appointed: And also all the estate, right, title, and interest of him the said William Penn, of, in, and to the said ———— acres. To have and to hold the said ———— acres, and every part and parcel of the same, to him the said ———— his heirs and assigns for ever, to the use of him the said ———— his heirs and assigns for ever, to be holden in free and common soccage of him the said William Penn, his heirs and assigns, as of the said signory of Windsor; yielding and paying therefor yearly, unto the said William Penn, his heirs or assigns, the chief or quit-rent of one shilling for every hundred acres of the said ———— acres, at, or upon the first day of March for ever, in lieu and stead of all services and demands whatsoever. And the said William Penn, for himself, his heirs and assigns, doth covenant and agree, to and with the said ———— his heirs and assigns, in manner and form following, that is to say, that he the said William Penn, his heirs or assigns, shall and will, by and before such time or times, as for that purpose are limited and appointed, in and by such constitutions or concessions made or hereafter to be made as aforesaid, clear, acquit, and discharge the said ———— acres, so to be set out, as shall be therein appointed, and every part of the same, of and from all manner of titles and claims of any Indian or native of the said tract or province: And also that the said —— —— his heirs and assigns, shall and may, quietly and peaceably, have, hold, and enjoy the said ———— acres, and every part thereof, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents, without the lett, disturbance or interruption of him the said William Penn, his heirs and assigns, or any other person or persons whatsoever claiming or to claim, from, by, or under him, them, or any of them. And further, that he the said William Penn, his heirs and assigns, shall and will, from time to time, make, do, and execute all such further and other act and acts, thing and things, conveyances and assurances whatsoever, as by or in pursuance of, or according to the true intent of such concessions or constitutions, so made or to be made, as aforesaid, shall be agreed or appointed, for the better conveying and assuring of the said ———— acres, to him the said ———— and his heirs, to the use of him and his heirs. And lastly, it is the true intent and meaning of all the parties to these presents, for the better preserving and securing the title of the said ———— acres: And the said ———— doth for himself, his heirs and assigns, covenant, promise and agree, to and with the said William Penn, his heirs and assigns, that he the said ———— his heirs or assigns, within six months after such time as a publick register shall be appointed and settled within the said tract or province, shall and will cause and procure these presents, or sufficient memorandums of the same, to be entered and inrolled in the said register, in such manner and sort as shall be for that purpose ordained and appointed. In witness whereof, &c.

N. B. Every purchaser, according to the quantity he purchased, had such a release.

AN ABSTRACT OF THE CONCESSIONS OF MR. PENN

To the first adventurers and purchasers in Pennsylvania; which the foregoing release recites.

By the concessions, dated July 11, 1681, it was agreed by William Penn, proprietor and governor of the province of Pennsylvania, and the first purchasers in the same province, viz:

"That a certain quantity of land or ground plat, shall be "laid out for a large town or city, in the most convenient "place upon the river for health and navigation; and every "purchaser and adventurer shall, by lot, have so much land "therein as will answer to the proportion which he hath bought "or taken up. And that the proportion of lands that shall be "laid out in the first great town or city, for every purchaser, "shall be after the proportion of ten acres for every hundred "acres purchased, if the place will allow it."

AN ABSTRACT OF MR. PENN'S ORDER TO HIS COMMISSIONERS.

By a special order from the proprietor, dated October 14, 1681, he ordered his commissioners "to lay out ten thousand "acres for a town; in which every purchaser or purchasers "of five thousand acres, shall have one hundred acres." And further ordered, " that this town shall be laid out for the "present purchasers."

Note, the commissioners appointed were William Crispin, William Hage, John Bezer, and Nathaniel Allen: William Crispin was appointed surveyor-general, as well as commissioner: but died before his arrival. Thomas Holme was appointed in his place; and arrived in Pennsylvania the latter end of June, 1682: and proceeded according to order, with the rest of the commissioners, to lay out a quantity of land for the aforesaid great town; which town includes both the city and liberties of Philadelphia.* And in October following, the proprietor arrived, when the aforesaid great town was divided in two parts, and was then called the city and liberties of Philadelphia; and is so called to this present time: and that the city originally extended over Schuylkill, as you see laid down in the plan, marked with the letters A. B. doth evidently appear by the following returns of surveys, viz:

*Which doth appear by Thomas Holme's draught of the same.

"Philip England's return, dated the 7th of the 3d month, "1685, for a lot on the west side of Schuylkill, in the city of "Philadelphia."

"Edward Pritchard's return for land in the liberties, on the "west side of Schuylkill,' and joining the city, &c."

"John Bristow's return for ditto, runs S. 18 degrees W. 15 ps. "which lines divide this land from the city of Philadelphia, "and on the west side of Schuylkill."

Many other proofs might be given to shew, that Philadelphia did run over Schuylkill; as the survey of the ferry lots, the burying-ground, &c. But as it is a matter of no consequence at this time, the charter only extending from river to river, and the lots appurtenant to the original purchasers, are marked and numbered as you see laid down in the plan, which extends from Delaware to Schuylkill Front Streets, being marked in the map with the letters A. C. This plan was, by order of the proprietor, sent to Philip Ford, his agent in London, to be published, that every purchaser might see the lot appurtenant to their purchase; which doth evidently appear.

ABSTRACT OF MR. PENN'S LETTER TO THE FREE SOCIETY OF TRADERS IN LONDON.

I. By a letter from the proprietor, dated at Philadelphia, August 16, 1683, to the free society of traders: he says,

"Philadelphia is at last laid out; to the great content of "those here, that are any ways interested therein. The situa- "tion is a neck of land, and lieth between two navigable rivers, "Delaware and Schuylkill; whereby it hath two fronts upon "the water, each a mile, and two from river to river. I say "little of the town itself, because a platform will be shewn you "by my agent; in which those who are purchasers of me, will "find their names and interests, &c."

THOMAS HOLME'S DESCRIPTION OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.

II. By the following short description of the situation and extent of the city of Philadelphia, and the platform thereof, by Thomas Holme, surveyor-general; where he says,

"The city of Philadelphia now extends in length, from river "to river, two miles, and in breadth near a mile. And the "governor, as a further manifestation of his kindness to the "purchasers, hath freely given them their respective lots in "the city, without defalcation of any of their quantities of "purchased lands. And it is now placed and modelled between "two navigable rivers, upon a neck of land. And that ships "may ride in a good anchorage, in both rivers, in six or eight "fathom water, close to the city: and the land of the city level, "dry and wholesome. Such a situation scarce to be par- "alleled."

"The model of the city appears by a small draught thereof "now made; and may hereafter, when time permits, be aug- "mented. And because there is not room to express the pur- "chasers names in the draught, I have therefore drawn direc- "tions of reference, by way of numbers, whereby may be "known each man's lot and place in the city."

"The city is now so ordered, by the governor's care and "prudence, that it hath a front to each river; one half at Dela- "ware, the other half at Schuylkill. And though all this can- "not make way for small purchasers to be in the fronts, yet "they are placed in the next streets contiguous to each front, "viz: All purchasers of a thousand acres and upwards, have "the Fronts and High Streets; and to every five thousand "acres purchase, about an acre in the front; and the smaller "purchasers, about half an acre in the backward streets."

"The city, as the model shews, consists of a large Front- "Street to each river, and a High-Street near the middle, from "river to river, of one hundred feet broad; and a Broad-Street "in the middle of the city, from side to side, of the like breadth. "In the center of the city is a square of ten acres, at each "angle, to build houses for public affairs. There is also, in "each quarter of the city, a square of eight acres, to be for "the like uses as Moorfields in London; and eight streets, "besides the said High-Street, that run from river to river, or "front to front; and twenty streets, besides the Broad-Street, "that runs cross the city, from side to side. All these streets, "are fifty feet broad."

ABSTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILIP FORD, IN LONDON, TO THOMAS HOLME, IN PHILADELPHIA, CONCERNING THE MAP OF THE CITY.

III. By a letter from Philip Ford, agent of the proprietor, in London, to Thomas Holme, surveyor-general of Pennsylvania, residing in Philadelphia. Dated, London, the 21st of the 1st month, 1684-5. He says,

"As for the map of the city, it was needful it should be "printed;* it will do us a kindness, as we were at a loss for "want of something to shew the people. I would fain know "how many houses are in Philadelphia; and if the city goes on "apace, &c."

IV. By the plan or platform of the city itself, which was produced in evidence at the supreme court, in Philadelphia, October 13, 1773, and upon the solemn affirmation of John Lukens, esq: the present surveyor-general, where he declared, that he never saw any other plan of the city of Philadelphia, but that plan then produced; which is here described: and that it was what he always did observe and follow (or words to that effect.)

V. By the tenor of every warrant for the lots in the city of Philadelphia, appurtenant to the original purchasers, the words following are expressed:

"At the request of A. B. purchaser, that I would grant him "his lot or lots ‖ in the city of Philadelphia, proportionable to "his purchase of ———— acres."

The distances of the streets from each other are as follows, viz:

	Feet.
From Delaware Front-Street to Second-Street is.....	396
Ditto Second-Street to Third-Street, ...	496
Ditto Third-Street to Fourth-Street, ...	396
Ditto Fourth-Street to Fifth-Street, ...	396
Ditto Fifth-Street to Sixth-Street, ...	396
Ditto Sixth-Street to Seventh-Street, ...	396
Ditto Seventh-Street to Eighth-Street, ...	396
Ditto Eighth-Street to Ninth-Street, ...	396
Ditto Ninth-Street to Tenth-Street, ...	396

*This plan was accordingly printed and published by Mr. Penn's printer, of Shoreditch, London.

‖Meaning the lot or lots numbered in the plan of the said city; as appears clearly by the returns of survey.

Ditto Tenth-Street to Eleventh-Street,	396
And from Eleventh-Street to Broad-Street,	528
The ten streets, fifty feet each, is	500
So that the distance from Delaware Front-Street to Broad-Street, makes	5,088
From Schuylkill Front-Street to Broad-Street,	5,088
Broad-Street,	100
The whole distance from Delaware to Schuylkill Front-Street on High-Street,	10,276

The distance of the streets North to South is as follows, viz:

From Cedar-Street to Pine-Street, is	652
Ditto Pine-Street to Spruce-Street,	468
Ditto Spruce-Street to Walnut-Street,	821
Ditto Walnut-Street to Chestnut-Street,	510
Ditto Chestnut-Street to High-Street,	497
Ditto High-Street to Mulberry-Street,	663
Ditto Mulberry-Street to Sassafras-Street,	614
And from Sassafras-Street to Vine-Street,	612
Total,	4,837
Five streets fifty feet each, is	250
High-Street one hundred feet, and Mulberry-Street fifty-six feet, makes	166
The whole distance from Cedar-Street to Vine-Street, is	5,253

It must be observed, that neither the breadth of Delaware nor Schuylkill Front Streets was ascertained when the plan was first made. And authough they appear to run parallel with the other streets in the plan, yet it is certain they run the courses of the rivers, both on Schuylkill and Delaware; which doth appear by the following returns of surveys:

"SURVEYED the 9th of the 5th month, 1683, by warrant "from the governor, dated the 2d of the fifth month, 1683, unto "William Brown, purchaser, his lots in the city. His front "lot, running S. 72 degrees E. by Charles Hartford's lot, 344 "feet; then S. 18 W. by the Second-Street 20 feet; N. 72 W. by "a vacant lot 344 feet; then N. 18 degrees W. by the Front-"Street 20 feet."

"SURVEYED the 12th of the 2d month, 1686, by warrant "from the proprietor, dated the 25th of the 2d month, 1684,

"unto John Hort, his lots in the city proportionable to his "purchase of 1,000 acres. His lot in the front runneth S. 72 "degrees E. by Edward West's lot 366 feet; then S. 18 degrees "W. by the Second-Street 20 feet; then N. 72 degrees W. by a "vacant lot 372 feet; then along the Front-Street to the place "of beginning."

"SURVEYED the 12th of the 2d month, 1686, by warrant "from the governor, dated the 3d of the 11th month, 1683, unto "Allen Forster, his lots in the city of Philadelphia, propor- "tionable to 1,000 acres purchase. His lot on the front at "Schuylkill runneth S. 72 degrees E. by John Hort's land 372 "feet; then S. 18 degrees W. by the Second-Street 20 feet; then "N. 72 W. by a vacant lot 378 feet; then along the Front-Street "to the place of beginning."

"SURVEYED the 12th of the 2d month, 1686, by a warrant "from the governor, dated the 21st of the 12th month, 168 , "unto Philip Thlemain. The front lot at Schuylkill runneth "S. 72 degrees E. by Allen Forster's lot, 384 feet; then S. 18 "degrees W. by the Second-Street 20 feet; then N. 72 W. by "a vacant lot 384 feet; then along the Front-Street to the place "of beginning."

"SURVEYED the 26th of the 2d month, 1687, unto Edward "West. His front lot at Schuylkill runneth S. 72 E. by William "Bowlin's lot 360 feet; then S. 18 W. by the Second-Street 20 "feet; then N. 72 W. by a vacant lot 365 feet; then to the place "of beginning by the Front-Street."

The readers will observe that the foregoing surveys lie between Mulberry and Sassafras Streets, where Schuylkill bears to the east on the city; which occasion those lots not to have the same distance between Front and Second Streets, as the other lots; nor equal sides, by Front-Street running the courses of the river.

*FRANCIS and GEORGE RODGERS's survey for their front lot, runs 396 feet from Schuylkill Front-Street on High-Street to Second-Street; and both sides equal.

THOMAS RUDYARD's survey near Spruce-Street, where Schuylkill bears to the west, is as follows, viz:

"Surveyed and laid out the 10th of the 6th month, 1685, "by virtue of a warrant from the governor, dated the 6th of the "4th month, 1684, unto Thomas Rudyard, his front lot at

*All the surveys any way near High-Street on Schuylkill as well as Delaware calls for Second-Street, at the distance of 396 feet from the Front Streets.

"Schuylkill, running S. 72 degrees E. by John Holton's lot, 604 "feet; thence S. 18 W. by the Second-Street, 51 feet; thence N. "72 degrees W. by a vacant lot, 620 feet; then along Schuylkill "Front-Street to the place of beginning; returned according to "which abovesaid survey, and bounds into the Proprietary's "Secretary's Office, the 10th of the 6th month, 1685."

THOMAS RUDYARD had another lot surveyed on Delaware, viz:

"By virtue of a warrant from the proprietary and governor, "bearing date the 6th instant, (directed to me) I hereby certify "into his Secretary's Office, that I have caused to be surveyed "and set out, the 23d instant, unto Thomas Rudyard, pur- "chaser, his lot in the city of Philadelphia, containing in "breadth 51 feet, and in length 426 feet; bounded northward "with Vine-Street, formerly called Valley-Street, eastward with "Delaware Front-Street, southward with a vacant lot, west- "ward with the Second-Street from Delaware; and is accord- "ingly entered and recorded in my office in Philadelphia, this "25th of the 4th month, 1684.

"THOMAS HOLME, Surveyor-General."

Note, That the foregoing surveys were made by Thomas Holme: and he that made the plan of the city, must certainly have known where the streets run; and would never have made those surveys, had not Schuylkill Front-Street run the courses of the river, &c.

Hence it appears, that the city was laid out as has been heretofore described; and that the Front Streets on Schuylkill and Delaware run the courses of the rivers.

And it is declared in the charter, that the city should for ever continue as it was then laid out, &c.

AN ABSTRACT OF THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.

"WILLIAM PENN, proprietary and governor of the province "of Pennsylvania, &c. To all to whom these presents shall "come, sends greeting. Know ye, that at the humble request "of the inhabitants and settlers of this town of Philadelphia, "being some of the first adventurers and purchasers within "this province, for their encouragement, and for the more "immediate and entire government of the said town, and better "regulation of trade therein, I have, by virtue of the king's

"letters patent, under the great seal of England, erected the "said town into a borough; and by these presents do erect the "said town and borough of Philadelphia into a city: which said "city shall extend the limits and bounds, as it is laid out be-"tween Delaware and Schuylkill."

"And I do, for me, my heirs and assigns, grant and ordain, "that the* streets of the said city shall for ever continue as "they are now laid out and regulated; and that the end of each "street, extending into the river, shall be and continue free "for the use and service of the said city and inhabitants "thereof; who may improve the same for the best advantage "of the city; and build wharfs so far out into the river there, "as the mayor, aldermen, and common-council, herein after "mentioned, shall see meet."

THE REASONS WHY THE PLAN OF THE CITY WAS ALTERED BY BENJ. EASTBURN, S. G.

The streets of the city continued as they were then laid out, until Benjamin Eastburn was appointed surveyor general; when a subsequent plan was made by him, marked A. D. in the map. By what authority that plan was made I know not; but the design in making of it is easily understood: as it not only takes 132 feet off the square on the west sides of Broad-Street, moving all the streets on Schuylkill front that distance to the eastward; but leaves out one whole square on the front of Schuylkill, from Cedar to Vine-Streets, making Front-Street D parallel with the other streets, at the distance of 528 feet on High-Street; (east of the real Front-Street) as you may see laid down in the plan: whereby the proprietors endeavoring to take back (for their own use) all the land lying between the street D and Schuylkill, then laying out the first purchasers lots on the east side of that street D which they call Front-Street, and observing the numbers regular as they are marked down in Thomas Holme's plan; this, of course, pushes the lots so far to the eastward, that they fall on the publick squares. So that the public is not only deprived of the front on Schuylkill, but likewise those squares.

*It is out of the power of any person whatsoever to produce any other model, plan, or platform, of the city of Philadelphia, at the time the charter was granted, than what was made by Thomas Holme.

Having now done with the city, (for this time) I propose taking a view of the other part of this great town, called the liberties.

THE LIBERTIES GRANTED TO THE FIRST PURCHASERS, AND THE COURSES OF THE SAME.

"By a return of a warrant from the proprietary and gover-"nor, to me directed, and dated the 26th instant, requiring me "to survey, or cause to be surveyed, unto John Moon and "Griffith Jones, five hundred acres of land apiece; unto Bar-"nabas Wilcox, six hundred acres; unto John Barns and "Thomas Bowman, five hundred acres apiece; unto Thomas "Ducket, John Goodson and John Songhurst, three hundred "apiece; unto Richard Townsend, one hundred and fifty acres; "all together in a place not already taken up, according "to the method of townships appointed by the governor."

"And whereas the governor hath ordered Richard Noble to "survey and surround a tract of land, adjoining the city of "Philadelphia, for the good and benefit of the first purchasers, "whereof a return is not made unto me; and so the extreme "parts or bounds not yet ascertained. And whereas I have "ordered thee to set out the township of Oxford about "Tackoney, to the northern side of that creek, where several "purchasers are already seated and placed; and will extend "above one township from the bounds of the Swedes' lands; "and that in the next township backward, some are already "placed and seated; both which townships are the very next "townships to the city lands, as far as I can perceive. I there-"fore hereby authorize thee to survey and set out to the above-"said persons, their respective quantities of land, and by lot, "or as they shall agree among themselves, in respect to order "of first and last, and in the remaining part of the said town-"ship; ever observing, that in the second township, and all "other townships hereafter to be laid out, where people are "not already placed, the latter moiety of the said township, "on both sides of the streets, be reserved for the purchasers "not already come over; which I have in charge by a warrant "from the governor to observe and follow: and make me a "true return both of the original field-works and protracted "figure, which, by my patent, are to remain in my office. Dated "at Philadelphia, the 28th of the 12th month, 1682."

"THOMAS HOLME."

To Thomas Fairman, surveyor.

The liberties were accordingly surveyed for the good and benefit of the first purchasers; and are bounded as follows, viz:

Beginning on Vine-Street, then up Delaware river to the mouth of Coach-que-naw-que; (which creek divides this from Jurian Hartfielder's land) then up the same, by the several courses, to a corner of the aforesaid land; then N. by W. by the same, 112 perches, to a white oak; then N. E. by the same, 184 perches, to a corner white oak standing by the S. W. side of Cohocksink; then down the same, on the several courses, till it intersects the line of Shackamexunk, in the fork of Cohocksink; then up the N. W. branch of said creek, to a corner white oak marked A, it being a corner of Shacamaxin and John Goodson's land; then E. N. E. by said land to B, a corner white oak, standing by a run; then down the run to C, a corner maple of the said land; then E. N. E. by the said land and Peter Cock's to D, a corner white oak, standing by Quissinomink: then up the same to E, standing by the mouth of Tackoney; then up Wiggohocking, on the several courses, to F, a white oak; it being a corner of Griffith Jones and John Moon's land; (note, this creek is the line that divides Griffith Jones's land in Bristol township, from the Philadelphia liberties) then W. by N. to G, a corner Spanish oak, it being a corner of Germantown and Bristol township; then N. E. by E. to H, a corner marked white oak, it being another corner of Germantown township; then N. W. by N. to I, a marked white oak, standing in Germantown line, and a corner of Robert Turner's land; then W. S. W. to K, a marked Spanish oak, standing by Schuylkill, another corner of Robert Turner's land; (these are the courses of the liberties on the east sides of Schuylkill.) Beginning now at L, a corner hickory, standing by the mouth of a small run, on the west side of Schuylkill; then W. S. W. to M, a corner of Mill creek, alias Cobb's creek; then down the same, on the several courses, to N, a Spanish oak, standing by a small run; then north to O, a marked white oak; then east to P; then south to Q; then east to R; (note, the last five letters are courses of Thomas Paschall's land) then S. E. to S, a corner standing by Schuylkill; then up the same, on the several courses, to the city of Philadelphia; then N. 18 degrees E. to the corner of Vine-Street; then S. 72 degrees E. by Vine-Street to the place of beginning, containing 16,236 acres, 1 quarter, 20 perches, viz:

	Acres.	q.	ps.
The liberties contain on the east side of Schuylkill,	9,161	3	3
On the west side of ditto,	7,074	2	17
The whole contents of the liberties,	16,236	1	20
The Swedes held within these bounds,	2,148	0	0
Remain for the purchasers,	14,088	1	20
The purchasers, whose deeds of lease and release recites the concessions, amount to	709,535	0	0
Their proportions, agreeable to the concessions at 20 acres per 1,000, are	14,190	3	0

Which makes 102 acres 1 quarter and 20 perches more than what there was land, to be divided amongst them after the Swedes' land was deducted.

The proprietor finding that the liberties contained no more than what was granted to the purchasers, and had made no reserve of any to himself, falls on the following scheme, viz: That every purchaser of 5,000 acres, should have but 80 acres on the east side of Schuylkill; that is to say, out of every 100 acres he reserved 20 acres for himself: and gave his orders to the surveyor accordingly.

Observe the two following notes from Thomas Holme, one to the governor, the other to Philip Lemain concerning Poor-Island:

"Governor,"

"DENNIS ROCHFORD's warrant mentions 100 acres as, in, "and for his liberty lot of 5.000 acres; and thou hast ordered "me to allow no more than 80 acres to any whosoever. Please "to afford me thy positive pleasure; for that he is not willing "to accept of less than 100 acres."

"T. HOLME."

POOR-ISLAND.

"If this land should be adjudged to Neilson, and to remain "in the same shape and figure, it will much hinder the laying "out the squares of 80 acres to 5,000 acres purchased. Ph. "L."——

"This land is taken into the liberties, as land not seated "according to order and rule, as my deputy-surveyor informs "me; and therefore the governor may please to let us have the "thing examined. This man has his seat of land at Shacka-"mexunk.

"T. HOLME."

"Eighth day of the 9th month, 1683."

But before these orders were given by the governor, he had granted warrants for 700 acres, after the rate of 100 acres to a 5,000 acres purchase, viz: To the society 400 acres, to Nicholas Moore 200 acres, to Dennis Rochford 100 acres; therefore when the liberties come to be properly stated, they stand thus:

	Acres.	q.	ps.
The liberties on the east side of Schuylkill amount to	9,161	3	3
The Swedes held land on the east side (deducted)	642	0	0
Remains,	8,519	3	3
Warrants granted at 20 acres per 1,000 acres (deducted),	700	0	0
Remains,	7,819	3	3
Out of which the proprietaries sold	3,836	0	3
There remains to be divided amongst the purchasers, at 80 acres to every 5,000 acres purchased,	3,983	3	0
The liberties on the west side of Schuylkill amount to	7,074	2	17
Brought from the east side of Schuylkill (added),	700	0	0
Total,	7,774	2	17
The Swedes' land on the west side of Schuylkill (deducted),	1,506	0	0
Remains,	6,268	2	17
Out of which the proprietaries sold (deducted)..	2,636	2	0
There remains to be divided amongst the purchasers, at 100 acres to every 5,000 acres purchased,	3,632	0	17
The 3,983 acres 3 quarters to be divided amongst the purchasers, at the proportion of 80 acres for every 5,000 acres, satisfies them to the amount of	248,984	1	0
The 3,632 acres 17 perches to be divided amongst the purchasers, at the proportion of 100 acres for every 5,000 acres, satisfies them to the amount of	181,611	3	0

	Acres.	q.	ps.
The purchasers that remain not yet satisfied, amount to	278,939	0	0
The whole amount of acres purchased, ...	709,535	0	0
The proprietaries have sold land, in the liberties, to the amount of	6,472	2	0
The proportion of liberty land, due on 278,939 acres, is	5,578	3	0
After all the purchasers were satisfied, at the proportion of 80 acres on the east side and 100 acres on the west side of Schuylkill to every 5,000 acres purchased, there would remain due to the proprietors, ...	896	2	0

But should the reader incline to think that the proprietors would not be so ungenerous as to sell lands a second time, and therefore infer that my calculations are wrong.—Now as they have the materials, I leave them to calculate the same, while I procure vouchers to prove the lines of the liberties.

Note. The names of the persons who held land on the east side of Schuylkill, the creeks, &c., joining the liberties, viz: John Roberts, Griffith Jones, Abel Thomas, Haverford Friends, Mill alias Cobb's creek, Thomas Paschall's, Schuylkill, the city, &c.

At the request of many of the subscribers that I would explain and give my opinion with regard to land in the liberties, said to have been concealed; I therefore think it proper, first to give them the opinion of the House of Assembly, (so far as it relates to property) which they agreed to nem con. and was entered in their minutes the 26th of the 6th month, 1704, signed by the speaker, and sent to the proprietor himself. Among other things, they say, viz:

ABSTRACT OF COMPLAINT ENTERED IN THE MINUTES OF THE ASSEMBLY.

"That we are also left remediless in this; that when we are "wronged and oppressed about our civil rights by the pro-"prietary, we cannot have justice done us; because the clerk "of the court being of his own putting in, refuses to make out "any process; and the justices, by and before whom our causes "against him should be tried, are of his own appointment; "by means whereof, he becomes judge in his own case; which "is against natural equity."

"That although the commissioners of property have power "by their commissions to make satisfaction, where people have "not their full quantity of land according to their purchase; "yet they neglect and delay doing right in that behalf."

"And at last the office of property and surveyor-general came "to be shut up; and thou kept them so while thou sold lands "to the value of 2,000l. sterling, and gave thy warrants in "England for surveying the said land; and also got great "tracts of land laid out or secured for thyself and relations, "besides several valuable parcels which should have been "laid out for the purchasers, but were reserved by thy sur-"veyors, whether for thee or themselves we know not; how-"ever, thou appropriated those lands to thyself by the name "of concealed lands; whereas, in truth, they were concealed "from the purchasers, who were to have their lands laid out "contiguous one to another, and no vacancies left between "them: and thou wast to have only thy tenth, as it fell, ac-"cording to the concessions thou made with the first adven-"turers; and if thou took it not up, it was thy own (not their) "fault."

"And under pretence of passing an act for confirming and "securing their lands, &c., thou obtained liberty to re-survey "all the lands in the province, and to bring the people to "terms for the overplus; so that, by this stratagem, the war-"rants, surveys, and new patents, cost the people as much, and "to some more than the first purchase of their lands; besides "their long attendance upon the secretary and surveyors to "have their business done: but before thou would pass that "act, it must be accompanied with an impost or excise, and "a 2,000l. bill besides.

"That it appears by several petitions now before us, that "very great abuses have been and are put upon the inhabit-"ants, and extortions used by the secretary, surveyors, and "other officers concerned in property as well as courts, which "might have been prevented (or sooner remedied) had thou "been pleased to pass the bill proposed by the Assembly, in "the year 1701, to regulate fees; as also the want of a surveyor-"general, which is a great injury and dissatisfaction to the "people; as is likewise the want of an established judicature "for trials between thee and the people: for if we exhibit our "complaints against thee, or those who represent thee in state "or property, they must be determined by or before justices "of thy own appointment; by which means, thou become, in "a legal sense, judge in thy own cause, &c."

"We have many other things to represent to thee as griev-"ances; as thy unheard of abuses to thy purchasers, &c., in "pretending to give them a town, and then by imposing un-"conscionable quit-rents, make it worse by tenfold than a "purchase would have been: also the abuse about the bank, "and want of common to the town; and not only so, but the "very land the town stands on, is not cleared of the Swedes' "claims."

"And we hope we need not be more express in charging "thee, as thou tenders thy own honour and honesty, or the "obligations thou art under to thy friends, and particularly "thy first purchasers and adventurers into this province."

The succeeding Assembly taking the above into considera-"tion, says, "Our part is only to lament, (as we really do) that "there should be true occasion for such representation."

And the Assembly, in a remonstrance to the proprietor, dated June 10th, 1707, says, "that the Assembly which sat "here on the 26th of the 6th month, 1704, agreed upon certain "heads or particulars, which, according to the order of that "day, were drawn up in a representation, and was signed by "the speaker, and sent thee by a passenger in John Guy's "brigantine, who was taken into France, from whence the "same representation was conveyed to thy hands; whereby "thou art put in mind, upon what force the purchasers and "first adventurers embarked with thee to plant this colony, "and what grants and promises thou made, and the assurance "and expectations thou gave them and the rest of the settlers "and inhabitants of this province to enjoy the privileges de-"rived from thy own grants and concessions, besides the rights "and freedoms of England. But how they were disappointed "in several respects, appears, in part, by the said representa-"tion, to which we refer; and become supplicants for relief, "not only in matters there complained of, which are not yet "redressed, but also in things then omitted, as well as what

"have been lately transacted, to the grievous oppression of "the queen's subjects, and public scandal of this government."

It is evident when the House came to the foregoing resolutions, they were assured in their own minds, that the city and liberties were secured for the purchasers; as the liberties were surveyed for their use, and their lots marked and numbered in the plan of the city; therefore conceived, that there was no grievance on that score, save the quit-rents imposed on them for the city lots. All the quit-rents reserved by the proprietor, are expressed in the deeds of lease and release, and are one shilling sterling for every 100 acres; and that rent was laid on the country land; those lots are appurtenant to the lands purchased, as much as improvements are appurtenant to any land whatsoever; therefore the proprietor has no more right to lay rents on those lots, than they have to lay rent on a house built on land for which the purchaser paid rent before.

Notwithstanding the proprietor, in his deeds of lease and release, did covenant with the purchasers as follows, viz: "And the said William Penn, for himself, his heirs and as- "signs, doth covenant and agree, to and with the said ———— "his heirs and assigns, in manner and form following, that is "to say, That he the said William Penn, his heirs or assigns, "shall and will, by and before such time or times, as for that "purpose are limited and appointed, in and by such constitu- "tions or concessions, made or hereafter to be made as afore- "said, clear, acquit and discharge the said ———— acres, "so to be set out, as shall be therein appointed, and every part "of the same, of and from all manner of tithes and claims of "any Indian or native of the said tract or province: And also, "that he the said ———— his heirs and assigns, shall and "may quietly and peaceably have, hold and enjoy the said "———— acres, and every part thereof, according to the "true intent and meaning of these presents, without the lett, "disturbance, or interruption of him the said William Penn, "his heirs and assigns, or any other person or persons what- "soever, claiming or to claim, from, by or under him, them, "or any of them. And farther, that he the said William Penn, "his heirs and assigns, shall and will, from time to time, make, "do, and execute all such further and other act and acts, "thing and things, conveyances and assurances whatsoever, "as, by, or in pursuance of, or according to the true intent "of such concessions or constitutions so made, or to be made "as aforesaid, shall be agreed or appointed, for the better "conveying and assuring the said land, &c." Yet when the purchasers came to get patents for their lots, (which they say are necessary*) they reserve a quit-rent; which the purchaser is obliged to pay yearly, besides paying for the warrant, survey, return, patent, recording, copying, and perhaps waiting on the secretary and surveyor general twenty or thirty times before their business be done.

It is agreed on all hands, that the purchaser having deeds of lease and release, reciting the concessions, the lot appurtenant marked in the plan of the city, with warrant and survey, is a good title: where then is the occasion of a patent? And the purchasers lot being marked as aforesaid, can, by bringing ejectment, get a verdict without any other survey: which was the case in the lot No. 1, with two very good juries. Where is the occasion of a new survey? As every purchasor's lot was actually surveyed, and laid down in the plan, by Thomas Holme. Neither did the council, on the part of the proprietor, attempt to dispute the title to, but the size of, the lot No. 1.

Query, What benefit are patents to the purchasers?

THE AUTHOR'S OPINION OF LAND SAID TO HAVE BEEN CONCEALED IN THE LIBERTIES; AND THE REASONS WHY HE GAVE IT.

I. THOSE purchasers, who accepted of 80 acres for a 5,000 acres purchase, are barred from ever claiming any more land in the liberties on that score.

II. THE proprietor had a right to no more land in the liberties than 896 acres and a half that remained after the purchasers were satisfied.

III. EVERY foot more than 896 acres and a half that the proprietor sold in the liberties, (in my opinion) were concealed from the purchasers.

My Reasons Are,

I. BECAUSE Mr. Penn, in the deeds of lease and release to the purchasers, did agree, viz: "That he the said William "Penn, his heirs and assigns, shall and will, from time to time, "make, do and execute all such further and other acts, thing

*Necessary, because it is those patents only which secure the proprietor the quit-rent imposed on the purchaser.

"and things, conveyances and assurances whatsoever, as, by, "or in pursuance of, or according to the true intent of such "concessions* or constitutions, so made or to be made, as "aforesaid, for the better conveying and assuring of the "same, &c."

II. BECAUSE it was agreed by William Penn, the proprietor, in those concessions with the first purchasers, the 11th of July, 1681, viz: "That a quantity of land should be laid out "for a large town or city; and every purchaser by lot have so "much land therein, as will answer to the proportion which he "bought: and that the proportion should be 10 acres for every "500 acres purchased, if the place would allow it."

And in pursuance of that agreement, the 14th of October following, Mr. Penn did, under his own hand and seal, under his then "commissioners to lay out the aforesaid great town "or city for the purchasers, in which every purchaser of 5,000 "acres should have 100 acres."

The commissioners did, in consequence of that order, lay out the said town for the first purchasers; as doth appear by Thomas Holme's ground-plat of the same.

III. BECAUSE after the city was laid out, and the lots numbered, Mr. Penn ordered Richard Noble (Thomas Holme's deputy) "to survey and surround the land, joining the city, "for the good and benefit of the first purchasers;" without making† reserve of any for himself.

IV. BECAUSE Mr. Penn, in a particular charge to Thomas Holme, ordered "him to reserve a moiety of the land, for the "purchasers not then come over."

*The only reserve Mr. Penn made for himself in those concessions, were, viz: "In every 100,000 acres, the governor, by "lot, reserves 10,000 to himself, what shall lie but in one place." Query, Have the proprietors a right to reserve for themselves small quantities of land, through the province, particularly the islands in all the rivers; some of which, perhaps, do not contain one acre?

†Suppose, the proprietor, by his order to Richard Noble, reserved land in the liberties for his own use; had he a right so to do? when from his concessions, which the deeds of lease and release recite, the purchasers were to have 10 acres to every 500 acres purchased, if the place would allow it; and in October following, ordered the "commissioners to lay out the same for "the purchasers; and for every 5,000 acres, the purchaser to "have 100 acres."

The liberties contained but* 986 acres and a half more than what satisfied the purchasers; allowing 80 acres to those who accepted it on the east side, and 100 on the west side, of Schuylkill.—And the tenor of every warrant, granted to the first purchasers for land in the liberties, signed by Mr. Penn, declares those lands to be appurtenant to their purchase, &c.

V. BECAUSE I do think there is a wide difference between reserving a moiety of land in the liberties for the purchasers not then come over in the year 1682, and designedly concealing that moiety from them in 1700; for it is impossible for any man to conceal land from himself.

NOW if the Asembly (at that time) considered the unlocated land in the country, that was reserved and sold by the proprietors, concealed from the purchasers; is it not reasonable to conclude, by the words inserted in the following† warrants, that the land in the liberties, actually surveyed for the good and benefit of the first purchasers, was designedly concealed from them?

PENNSYLVANIA.

"William Penn, absolute proprietary and governor in chief of the province of Pennsylvania and counties annexed."

"Being requested to grant unto John Penington, Daniel "Whorley, William Penington, and thyself, one hundred acres "of liberty land in right of a purchase of five thousand acres: "I do hereby permit and require thee forthwith to survey, or "cause to be surveyed for your use and behoof, the aforesaid "number of acres in the liberty lands of Philadelphia, where "it has not yet been laid out, nor designedly concealed; and "make return thereof into my secretary's office. Given under "my hand and seal, at Philadelphia, the 25th of the 5th month, "1700." "WILLIAM PENN."

"To Edward Penington, surveyor-general of the province of "Pennsylvania and territories."

*Eight hundred and twenty acres of land were granted by the proprietors to Swanson and comp, in lieu of their right to the land where the city now stands.

† Those warrants were kept a profound secret; it was known but to few there were such existing: so secret were they kept, that Mr. Lukens, the present surveyor-general, offered to lay the author a bett of one hundred pounds there were no such warrants: so positive was he, that he offered to have his arm cut off, in case such could be produced. After some altercations a bett was laid; which Mr. Lukens had the honour to, and generously did, pay.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"William Penn, absolute proprietary and governor in chief of the province of Pennsylvania and counties annexed."

"At the request of Joseph Pike, by his attorney Thomas "Story, that I should grant him to take up one hundred acres "of land in the liberties of Philadelphia, in right of five thou- "sand acres purchased by Samuel Rowles, of the kingdom of "Ireland, and by him sold to the said Joseph Pike. These are "to require thee forthwith to survey, or cause to be surveyed "to him the said Joseph Pike, the said number of acres of land, "within the said liberties, not already taken up, or that has "been concealed; and make return thereof into my secretary's "office. Given under my hand and seal, at Philadelphia, the "25th of the 5th month, 1700."

"WILLIAM PENN."

"To Edward Penington, surveyor-general of the province of "Pennsylvania and territories."

IT is necessary to show how those concealed lands were disposed of, viz:

PENNSYLVANIA.

"William Penn, absolute proprietary and governor in chief of the province of Pennsylvania and counties annexed."

"These are to require thee forthwith to survey, or cause to "be surveyed, unto David Jones, late of Merionethshire in "Wales, two hundred and fifty acres of my land, on the west "side of Schuylkill, within the bounds of the liberties of "Philadelphia; to be bounded to the westward with the land "seated by Hugh Roberts, to the northward with William "Edwards, to the southward with a line to be run parallel to "the line of William Warner, at the distance of twenty perches "from the same; and to the westward with my vacant land, "reserving fifty acres on the N. E. corner adjacent to Jonathan "Wynne and Hugh Roberts; and make return thereof into my "secretary's office. Given under my hand and seal, at Philadelphia, the 19th of the 12th month, 1700-1."

"WILLIAM PENN."

"To Edward Penington, surveyor-general of the province of "Pennsylvania and territories."

"Whereas by warrant, under the proprietor's hand and "seal, to thee directed, bearing date the 19th of the 12th month, "1700-1, thou was ordered to lay out to David Jones two hun- "dred and fifty acres of land, within the bounds of the liberties "of Philadelphia, to be bounded to the northward with William "Edwards, and southward with a line (at the distance of

"twenty perches, to be run parallel with William Warner's "land; which warrant thou art said to have executed accord- "ingly, but last not made return thereof. Now these are, "by the governor's special order, to desire thee, in thy return "of said tract, to add the said twenty perches left out between "the same and William Warner's line; so that the said line "of William Warner's be the southward bounds of the said "David's land; for which, this, by the governor's command, "will be thy sufficient authority. Dated at Philadelphia, the "2d of the 6th month, 1701."

"JAMES LOGAN, sec."

"To Edward Penington, surveyor-general."

AN EXPLANATION OF SOME PARTICULAR PARTS OF THE MAP, WHICH PERHAPS THE READER MAY NOT UNDERSTAND.

THE reasons why the purchasers names are spelt different ways in the catalogue and surveys, are, because they were so spelt in the original, viz: Thomas Bowin in the catalogue, ought to be Bourn, and Springgatsbury in the draught should be Springettsbury; as also several others of the same kind.

JOHN TYSACK's 32 acres at the Falls, on the east side of Schuylkill, the corners marked a, and William Markham's 80 acres marked b, is said to have been sold to William Palmer, who got a re-survey of the same marked d: James Steel and Isaac Norris's surveys marked c, takes in the remaining part of John Tysack, William Markham's, and part of Swanson's and comp, though the Swansons recovered that part, in their lines, of the heirs of Stell. Rowland Ellis's 17 acres and 80 perches were moved: and John Songhurst's liberty land laid on that place. George Delwyn's survey I have not got.

THOMAS PASCHALL's survey of 500 acres of country land on the west side of Schuylkill, runs into Barnaby Wilcox's 200 acres in the liberties, which occasioned Wilcox to get a re-survey: and in order to make up his quantity, takes in that piece marked C.

WILLIAM SMITH's 50 acres extended no further west then d, but re-surveyed to f. James Craven had his land surveyed with Richard Pierce and Comp.

RICHARD MARCH's 200 acres appurtenant to his purchase of 10,000 acres; see the corners marked with a, the re-survey with b, and John Simcox with c.

JOHN BALL's new survey takes in part of Richard Fewes, and the lot marked I B. James Steel got a new survey, which takes in part of Francis Smith, Richard Fewes, and the lot marked 3: The numbers 1, 4, 6 and 20, I have not got, nor A, B, D, E, I, P, Q. F was surveyed to Paul Saunders; and O for a burial-ground.

WHEN you want to find a lot appurtenant to a purchase, apply to the alphabet: In the first column of which, is the number of the township; then look for the same township in the map, where you will find the name and quantity purchased, and the lots appurtenant. If the lots are numbered in the column marked D F they are on Delaware front; but if in S F then on Schuylkill front. And should the number of acres be 1,000 and upwards, begin at No. 1, in the plan on Front-Streets; but under 1,000, at No. 1, on the back streets.

A B. Shews the outlines of the city extending over Schuylkill. A C. As it was divided into lots by Thomas Holme. A D. The alterations of said plan by Benjamin Eastburn.

I thought it better to let the N. W. corner of the plan of the city intersect Delaware in the map, (as it is a matter of no consequence to the purchasers, their lots being numbered between Delaware and Schuylkill) than to contract the plan; as it would make the figures in it so small, that they could scarcely be distinguished.

THE reason why I divided the lot No. 1 by a dotted line, part of which is marked a, was, because in that square 102 feet are granted to the Germans; who were not first purchasers, neither have they any lots marked in the plan.

WARRANTS

ISLANDS in the SUSQUEHANNA

1793–1812.

APPLICATIONS FOR ISLANDS IN THE RIVER SUSQUEHANNA.

COMMENCING IN 1793 AND ENDING 1812.

1793—10 May—James Black, 10 acres. An Island in the West Branch of Susquehanna, nearly opposite the upper end of Milton, and opposite to a plantation of the said James Black, on the main land, containing ten acres. This island hath thereon cleared, about eight acres; five acres thereof was the original improvement made thereon by Marcus Hulings in April, in the year 1770. There is also at this time on the said island a small cabin of about twelve feet in length. It is distant from the main shore easterly about 30 perches, and distant from the westerly shore forty perches. The soil thereof is capable of cultivation, and hath on the easterly shore thereof a beach whereon shad have been fished for in some past seasons. The original improver of this island is Marcus Hulings, as aforesaid, who by deed dated the 6th day of April, instant, 1793, conveyed the same unto the said James Black in fee. This island was also taken into possession by Samuel Wallis in the year 1783, who conveyed the same unto William Antis, who conveyed the same unto the said James Black in fee. A warrant to accept the survey of this island issued 19th June, 1794. See the file.

13 May—Mordecai Morrison, 2 acres. A small island in the northeast branch of Susquehanna, about fifteen miles above Sunbury, and about two miles above the mouth of Mahoning creek, just below an Island Patented to James Coughran and about 20 perches from the shore where this applicant lives in Shamokin Township, Northumberland County, improved on by this applicant about fifteen years ago.

13th May—John Buyers, Wt. issued 12 May, 1804, Patented 9th Dec., 1807, 1 acre 140 perches. A small Island in the middle of the West Branch of Susquehanna, about two miles from the town of Sunbury and opposite lands of Messrs. Heuburn & Cowdon, below and adjoining said Buyers' other island, fit for cultivation, above ¾ of an acre clear and fenced about four years ago by Benjamin Patterson on an improving lease under said Buyers, the residue well timbered, has a small fishery cleared along one side which is only sometimes fortunate, called in Buffaloe Tow'p, Northumberland county.

13th May—John Buyers, Wt. issued 12th May, 1804, Patented 20th November, 1804, 174 acres. Another small island, below and adjoining said Buyers' big Island, rather nearer the South side of the river, safe high land, now clear and in grass, improvement made about six years ago by Frederick McPherson, the soil of a middling quality.

15 May—Jacob Snyder, 3 acres. An island lying in the north east Branch of the river Susquehanna, about five miles from the town of Sunbury, opposite to the Widow Cook's land, on the East, and Shippen's land on the West, in Northumberland county, which said island is stated to be unimproved.

16 May—Nathaniel Brown & John Kelly, 15 acres. An Island in the North branch of Susquehanna river, opposite to the mouth of Sugar creek, in the new purchase, and opposite to land surveyed by William Shaw, Esquire, in Company. The soil thereof is capable of cultivation and never hath been cultivated nor improved; but no fishery hath been known thereon.

21 May—John Lawson, 3 or 4 acres. A small island in the river Susquehanna, opposite the land I purchased of Polly Allison, there is a considerable quantity of sugar trees on it, and at low water a good fishery.

23 May—James Jacks, Returned as previously Valued for Boude & Strickler, 2 acres. A small island in the river Susquehanna, situated about two miles below Wright's Ferry, and opposite to a place commonly called "Pattons Bottom," and about 1 miles from my plantation in Manor Township, Lancaster County, and is 150 yards from the Eastern shore of said river.

23 May—James Jacks, Valuation returned, 1 acre. About ¼ of a mile below the above mentioned island; they are not improved.

23 May—Thomas Boude and Jacob Strickler, 2½ acres. An island in the river Susquehanna called "the Long Island," opposite the land of William McKean, which I improved and peaceably possessed since the year 1784.

28th May—James Black, Sen'r, (3 Islands). An island in the West Branch of Susquehanna river, unimproved, lying opposite Lot No. 343 in Lewisburgh and extending up said Branch nearly opposite George Lang's landing place. One

VIRGINIA CLAIMS

TO LANDS IN

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

[As preparatory to the "Virginia Entries" of Lands in Western Pennsylvania, the following account of the Pennsylvania and Virginia Controversy, prepared by Major Robert H. Foster, of the Land Department, Office Secretary of Internal Affairs, throws light upon matters not fully understood.]

THE PENNSYLVANIA AND VIRGINIA CONTROVERSY.

A boundary controversy that involved the right to a considerable area of land, now within the limits and jurisdiction of our State, began as early as the year 1754, between the colonial authorities of Virginia on the one side, and Governor James Hamilton, the representative of the proprietaries of Pennsylvania, on the other. Indeed prior to that time, in 1749, Gov. Hamilton, in a letter to Thomas Lee, President of Virginia, on being informed by the latter that large grants of land on the branches of the Ohio river had been made "to certain gentlemen and merchants of the city of London and to inhabitants of the colony of Virginia," desired the opinion of the latter as to whether it would not be of use to have the western bounds of Pennsylvania fixed by commissioners of both governments in order to be assured that no part of these recent grants would fall within its limits, and at the same time expressing a readiness to appoint commissioners and proceed to act with others to be appointed by Virginia for the purpose of ascertaining and marking the lines, but this proposition did not meet with a favorable response, and no action was taken upon it. Following this, in 1752, by the alarming encroachments of the French, then pressing with energy and determination, from Canada and the lakes towards the Ohio river, the authorities of both provinces were looking with great anxiety to the dangers that threatened their western borders. It became known in that year that the authorities of Virginia, as a matter of self protection, began to contemplate the erection of a fort at the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, the present site of the city of Pittsburgh, a point which was believed to be of such great strategic importance that upon it possession in a large measure, depended the control of the great Ohio Valley. Thomas Penn was not averse to the building of this fort by the Virginians, but, at the same time, was anxious that his own rights should not be in any way prejudiced by the attempt. In March, 1752, he writes to Gov. Hamilton: "I desire you will enter into any reasonable measure to assist the government of Virginia to build there, to wit at the Ohio, having some acknowledgment from him, that this settlement shall not be made use of to prejudice our right to that country," and again, on the 3th of July, of the same year, he writes: "I hope you will, as I wrote you on the 9th of March, acquaint the Governor of Virginia that we consent to this (that is, to the building of a fort at the Ohio) without prejudice to our right to the land in case it should be found to lie within our province, to be granted to the bonafide settlers on the same terms and conditions as they are to have it from Virginia."

It was decided in 1754, by Governor Dinwiddie, of Virginia, that a fort should be built, and in order to raise a military force of sufficient strength for the purpose in view, on the 19th of February of that year, he issued his proclamation; and to encourage enlistments, made promises of land to be surveyed east of the Ohio to such persons as would enter his service. This proclamation in part reads as follows: "Whereas it is "determined that a fort be immediately built on the river Ohio, "at the fork of Monongahela, to oppose any further encroach- "ments or hostile attempts of the French, and the Indians, in "their interest, and for the security and protection of his "majesty's subjects in this colony, and as it is absolutely "necessary that a sufficient force should be raised to meet and "support the same: For an encouragement to all who shall "voluntarily enter into said service, I do hereby notify and "promise, and by and with the advice and consent of his "majesty's council in this colony, that over and above their "pay, two hundred thousand acres of his majesty, the King of "Great Britain's lands, on the east side of the river Ohio, "within this dominion (one hundred thousand acres whereof "to be contiguous to the said fort, and the other one hundred "thousand acres to be on or near the river Ohio), shall be laid "off and granted to such persons, who by their voluntary "engagement, and good behavious, in the said service, shall "deserve the same." On the 13th of March following, Governor Hamilton wrote to Gov. Dinwiddie in answer to his proclamation that "the invasions, etc., having engaged me to inquire "very particularly into the bounds and extent of this province "westwardly, I have from thence the greatest reason to be- "lieve that the fort and lands (intended to be granted) are "really within the limits of Pennsylvania." In reply, Dinwiddie, on the 21st of March, wrote to Hamilton, "I am much "misled by our surveyors, if the forks of Monongialo be within "the limits of your Proprietor's grant." The reply of Gov. Dinwiddie, here quoted, appears to be the first recorded notice of the claim of Virginia to the southwestern corner of this State, and therefore, to be regarded as the beginning of a dispute which was to continue for thirty years before an adjustment was reached. In the summer of 1754 a company of Virginians, under command of Captain Trent, arrived at the confluence of the rivers and commenced to build the proposed fort; but before they had completed their labors a force of one thousand French and Indians, with eighteen pieces of cannon, appeared before the unfinished stockade and compelled the little body of forty-one men present for its defense to surrender. The French immediately built "Fort Duquesne," and remained in possession until forced, by the expedition of General Forbes, to destroy and abandon it in November, 1758, its place being taken by Fort Pitt, built in 1759.

The claim of Virginia embraced all the land west of Laurel Hill, included within the present counties of Westmoreland, Fayette, Greene, Washington, and parts of Allegheny and Beaver; whilst the Pennsylvania claim rested entirely upon the charter of Charles II, King of Great Britain, to William Penn, by which the lands granted to Penn were to extend westward five degrees in longitude from the river Delaware, and there had been sufficient investigation to convince the Pennsylvania Proprietaries that the point at which the two rivers united to form the Ohio was some distance within the limits of the royal grant to them. For twenty years, however, after 1754, there was no official correspondence between the authorities of the two colonies in relation to their claims, and, although the military grants promised in the proclamation of Gov. Dinwiddie were never surveyed or given to the persons who were to receive them, settlements within the bounds of the territory in dispute under Virginia rights were encouraged, and in a few years, after success had crowned the efforts of General Forbes to wrest from the French their hold upon the Ohio, and Colonel Boquet's expedition had driven away the Indians and relieved the beleaguered garrison at Fort Pitt, pioneer settlers began to appear along the Monongahela Valley.

On the part of the Pennsylvania authorities no rights were granted for lands west of the Allegheny mountains until after the treaty at Fort Stanwix in November, 1768, by which the Indian title to that section of the State was extinguished. Many applications authorizing surveys to be returned under the application system then in force, were entered early in 1769, and after that system ceased in September of the same year, many warrants for lands purchased were granted. Bedford county, which included within its limits the entire southwestern corner of the State to its western boundary, was formed in 1771, and from that time there was an active renewal of the boundary controversy, with conflict of jurisdiction and earnest contention between the two provinces. Emigrants from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, with rights from Pennsylvania and Virginia, had entered the disputed territory, and, with aroused feelings, as their sympathies and interests swayed them, became hot partisans either of Virginia or Pennsylvania. Lord Dunmore had in the meantime succeeded to the Governorship of Virginia, and threw himself into the controversy in behalf of his province with intense zeal, completely ignoring the Pennsylvania rights, under the charter of Charles II, to any territory west of Laurel Hill, and asserting in offensive ways, by letters and proclamations, the rights of the province of Virginia to that portion of Penn's grant. In 1773 Lord Dunmore himself appeared at Fort Pitt, and appointed an agent, in the person of Dr. John Connelly, to whom was given authority to extend and strengthen so far as possible the power and jurisdiction of Dunmore, over the inhabitants who had, at that early day, in the face of hardships, privations and dangers, ventured into that wild and comparatively unknown region. Connelly, in the performance of what he conceived to be his duty, proved to be a not less zealous and probably a more unscrupulous partisan of Virginia than his master. From the time of his arrival at Fort Pitt until his departure at the opening of the revolutionary struggle with the mother country, he appears in an unenviable light as an active fomenter of ill-will and strife among the settlers. Indeed, it seemed that he was actuated by a deliberately formed purpose of provoking animosities and antagonisms toward the Pennsylvania authorities. Westmoreland county was formed from a part of Bedford in 1773, and Hannastown, made historic by its destruction in 1782, by marauding Indians, assisted by a few renegade white men, was designated as the county seat. Magistrates were immediately appointed for the new county, and at Hannastown justice, according to the forms of law, was first administered west of the Allegheny mountains under the provincial government of Pennsylvania. On the first of January of the following year Connelly announced his assumption of the duties of his appointment by a proclamation, called at the time an advertisement, which was posted at Fort Pitt and its vicinity. In this advertisement, in which he styled himself "Captain Commandant of the Militia of Pitsburg and its Dependencies," he says that his instructions are "to insure "his Majesty's subjects settled on the western waters, that, "having the greatest regard to their prosperity and interest, "and convinced from their repeated memorials of the griev- "ances of which they complain, that he proposes moving to "the House of Burgesses the necessity of erecting a new county "to include Pittsburg, for the redress of your complaints," * * * ; and further, "in order to facilitate this desirable "circumstance, I hereby require and command all persons in "the Dependency of Pitsburg to assemble themselves there "as a militia on the 25th instant, at which time I shall com- "municate other matters for the promotion of public utility."

The action of Connelly did not escape the attention of the civil officers of Westmoreland county, and before the day appointed for the assembling of the militia at Pittsburg he was arrested by order of Arthur St. Clair, then prothonotary of the court, who afterward became General St. Clair. In a letter to Gov. Penn, dated February 2, 1774, giving a report in detail of his proceeding, St. Clair says: "Dr. Connelly was arrested "previous to the meeting, by orders, on his avowing himself "the author of the advertisement requiring the people to meet "as a militia and committed on refusing to find securities for "his good behavior till next court." Connelly, however, did not remain long in confinement. After a few days he was permitted to return to Pittsburg under a promise, made upon his honor, to return to Hannastown before the term of court to be held in the coming month of April; but instead of remaining at Pittsburg he went up the Monongahela river to Redstone (now Brownsville), and from thence, guarded by a number of his adherents, to Virginia, returning to Pittsburg in March. With his body guard he took possession of the fort, and under later instruction from Dunmore, reiterated his determination to enforce the laws of Virginia. When the time for the meeting of the court of Westmoreland county arrived, Connelly was present to redeem his promise, but not in manner expected. He came with an armed force sufficiently strong to protect himself from re-arrest, defy the court, and to prevent himself, as he said, from being illegally taken to Philadelphia. His first move was to seize the court house and place armed sentinels at the door with orders not to permit anyone to enter until he had communicated with the magistrates. He sent a letter to the magistrates, in which he said: "I have come to "free myself from a promise made to Captain Proctor, but "have not conceived myself amenable to this court, by any "authority from Pennsylvania, upon which account I cannot

"apprehend that you have any right to remain here as justices "of the peace constituting a court under that province." But he expressed a willingness that the court might act in such matters as should be submitted to it by the acquiescence of the people until he received instructions to the contrary from Virginia. The justices of the court, regarding Connelly's action, not only as an inexcusable impertinence, but as a flagrant and outrageous usurpation of power to which they could not with any sense of personal dignity and self respect submit, of course declined to accede to his offer. The following is their sole reply: "The jurisdiction of this court and officers "of the county of Westmoreland rests on the legislative au- "thority of the Province of Pennsylvania, confirmed by His "Majesty in council. That jurisdiction has been regularly ex- "ercised, and the court and officers will continue to exercise "it in the same regular manner. It is far from their intention "to occasion or foment disturbances, and they apprehend that "no such intention can with propriety be inferred from any "part of their conduct; on the contrary, they wish and will do "all they can to preserve the public tranquility. In order to "contribute to this very salutary purpose, they give informa- "tion that every step will be taken on the part of the Pro- "vince of Pennsylvania to accommodate any difficulties that have arisen between it and the Colony of Virginia, by fixing "a temporary line betwixt them." Thomas Smith, afterwards a member of the Continental Congress, and later a justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, under date of April 7, 1774, from "Westmoreland Court," writes to Joseph Shippen, Esq., a full account of these occurrences. In this letter he says: "We heard when we came up to this court that he "(Connelly) was mustering a large party in order to prevent "the court from sitting; we thought that there could be no "foundation for such a report, but at the same time we thought "it prudent to order the sheriff to raise as many men as he "could collect, to prevent us from being insulted by a lawless "set of men, acting under the color of authority—the time "was so short that but few were collected on our side, and "those few were ill-armed, so that we found ourselves in a "very disagreeable situation when we received certain intelli- "gence that Connelly was coming down with 200 armed men; "when we found that they were near at hand the magistrates "thought it prudent to adjourn the court, as it was near the "time." Immediately following the adjournment of the court came the arrest of Aeneas Mackey, Devereux Smith and Andrew McFarland, three of the Westmoreland county justices who resided at Pittsburg. They had returned to their homes from Hannastown, on the 9th of April, and on the next day were arrested by order of Connelly. The charge against them was that they were parties to the answer of the court given to Connelly, and upon their refusal to recognize his authority by entering bail for their appearance at Staunton, Virginia, to be there tried in court, they were immediately sent under guard to that place to be confined in jail. Before reaching Staunton it appears that one of their number, Mackey, was permitted to go to Williamsburg, Virginia, to present his account of the arrest to Lord Dunmore. After hearing the story, Dunmore said in reply that Connelly had authority to prosecute the claim of Virginia "to Pittsburgh and its Dependencies," and that in making arrests he only imitated the officers of Pennsylvania, who had imprisoned him. The justices, however, were released from arrest and permitted to return home.

Governor John Penn, had been fully advised of the intentions and proceedings of Connelly and his followers. His anxiety for the security of the possessions of the Proprietaries was aroused, and he felt that the time for action on his part had come. Accordingly, on the 31st of January, 1774, a letter was addressed by him to Lord Dunmore, in which he first referred to the conduct of Connelly in commanding the people to meet him as a militia at Pittsburg, and assuming to exercise jurisdiction over them as settlers under the government of Virginia, as a step so sudden and unexpected as to be not only a matter of great surprise to him, but that it was also very alarming to the inhabitants who had taken, improved and had hitherto enjoyed their lands under Pennsylvania grants. With a view to convince Lord Dunmore of the justice of his claim, he continued in a conciliatory tone: "Being, however, "too well acquainted with your Lordship's character to admit "the least idea that you would countenance a measure in- "jurious to the rights of the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania, or "which might have a tendency to raise disturbances within "the Province, I flatter myself that the laying before you a "short statement of the limits of this Province, so far as re- "gards the present question, and acquainting you with the "steps which have been taken to ascertain its western extent, "and the situation of Pittsburg, will be abundantly sufficient "to satisfy you that that place is, beyond all doubt, within this "Province. The western extent of the Province of Pennsyl- "vania, by the Royal Grant, is five degrees of longitude from "the River Delaware, which is its eastern boundary. In the "year 1768, an east and west line was run from the Delaware, "at the mouth of Christiana Creek, to the crossing of Dunkard "creek, a branch of Monongahela, by Messrs. Dixon and Mason, "two surveyors of distinction, who were sent over from Eng- "land to run the division line between Maryland and Penn- "sylvania. These artists fixed the latitude and extent of that "line with the utmost exactness and precision, to the satis- "faction of the commissioners on both sides. From the 233d "milestone on this line a north line hath been since carefully "run and measured to the Ohio, and from thence up to Fort "Pitt; the several courses of the river have been taken with all "possible care. From the line of Dixon and Mason to a known "point in the south line of the city of Philadelphia, the true "courses and distances hath been discovered by actual survey, "as also from the point aforesaid, to that part of the river "Delaware which is in the same latitude as Fort Pitt, and from "these several data, the most exact calculations have been "made by Dr. Smith, Provost of our College, and Mr. Ritten- "house, our Surveyor General, in order to ascertain the differ- "ence of longitude between Delaware and Pittsburg, who all "agree that the latter is near six miles eastward of the west- "ward extent of the Province." A map of the lines run, with calculations and explanatory notes accompanied this letter; and hoping to avoid the trouble that must arise from clashing and disputed jurisdiction, his Lordship was requested, if he should still entertain doubts respecting the dispute, to defer appointing officers and exercising authority in that neighborhood, and thus permit the settlers to remain in undisturbed possession of their lands held under rights granted by the authorities of Pennsylvania until a temporary line of jurisdiction could be agreed upon by commissions to be appointed by governments, or until the question of boundaries could be settled finally by His Majesty, the King of England. Dunmore's reply, under date of March 3, 1774, to the letter of John Penn, was an emphatic refusal to accept the map and calculations transmitted with the letter, on the ground that the observations on which they were founded were made without the participation of Virginia, and because the right of the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania to the country about Pittsburg must be founded "on better authority than is there adduced to make it valid;" and while disclaiming any intention of causing disturbances he declined to defer the appointing of officers. He also justifies Connelly in all his proceedings and insisted that reparation be made for his arrest by the dismissal of St. Clair from office, characterizing the arrest as "a great insult on the authority of His Majesty's Government in Virginia." John Penn's answer to the above letter, dated Philadelphia, March 31, 1774, is a review of the dispute from the time it began with the proposed building of a fort at the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers. And to avert disturbances and dissensions he again asks Dunmore "to defer attempting to extend the jurisdiction of Virginia "within the bounds claimed by the Proprietaries of Pennsyl-"vania; the more so because," as he says, "a petition for a "commission to run out and mark the boundaries between us "is now depending before His Majesty." He also again takes occasion to state the claim of Pennsylvania as follows: "I "must take this oportunity of notifying your Lordship that "the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania do claim, by their said "petition, as part of their Province of Pennsylvania, all lands "lying west of a south line to be drawn from Mason and "Dixon's line as it is commonly called, at the westermost part "of the province of Maryland, to the beginning of the fortieth "degree of north latitude, to the extent of five degrees of "longitude from the river Delaware, and I must request your "Lordship will neither grant lands nor exercise the govern-"ment of Virginia within those limits, till his Majesty's pleas-"ure be known."

Correspondence having thus failed to bring about an adjustment of the dispute, the situation, in the conflict of jurisdiction set up and maintained by each party, became more and more alarming, while the danger of actual collision between the settlers, adherents of one side or the other, increased each day. The Pennsylvania authorities, in this threatening emergency, were still anxious for peace, and in the hope that outbreaks and probably bloodshed might be prevented, determined that one more effort looking to the establishment of a temporary line should be made. Accordingly two commissioners, in the persons of James Tilghman and Andrew Allen, members of the council of the Province, were appointed by Gov. John Penn, and, under written instructions, were directed to proceed to Williamsburg, Va., to treat in person with Lord Dunmore, for a temporary line, in order that the "public peace and tranquility on the border" might be preserved. These commissioners proceeded to Virginia, but their mission was a failure. They first called upon Dunmore to pay their respects to him and to inform him of the object of their presence: first, to ask him join the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania in a petition to the Crown to appoint commissioners to run the lines of Pennsylvania to the westward; and, second, in the meantime, to agree with his Lordship upon a line of jurisdiction to remedy the inconveniencies of clashing jurisdictions and prevent them in the future. His Lordship desired the propositions of the commissioners to be reduced to writing, which was accordingly done. Several letters passed between the commissioners and Dunmore, but nothing came of the negotiations. The latter would not concede anything to the commissioners, or agree that their construction of the royal grant to Penn was in any way correct, contending, according to his construction of the charter, that Fort Pitt must be fifty miles outside of the boundary of Pennsylvania, and asserting that it would be impossible for him to consent to any settlement that would oblige him to surrender jurisdiction over Fort Pitt and the surrounding country. The commissioners, extremely desirous that they should not wholly fail in their mission to secure an understanding of some kind, as a last effort, and as the utmost they could concede, then agreed to recede from their construction of the charter limits so far as to make the river Monongahela, from Mason and Dixon's line downwards to the Ohio, the western line of jurisdiction, believing that such an adjustment would, as they said, "at once settle our present disputes without great trouble and "expense in running lines, or the inconvenience of keeping the "jurisdiction in suspense." This proposition was likewise rejected, and further efforts on the part of the commissioners to secure an accommodation of the trouble ceased. Their last communication was addressed to Lord Dunmore on the 27th of May, 1774, and they announced the following day as the time for their departure.

To add to the hardships of the settlers on the western borders during the summer of 1774, Indian troubles came upon them, and they were threatened with the most dire consequences. Massacres occurred, a panic ensued, and safety was found only in flight to the east side of the Monongahela. During this gloomy period Lord Dunmore at the head of an armed force ostensibly for the purpose of suppressing the Indian outbreak, again appeared at Fort Pitt, the name of which had been changed to Fort Dunmore. While at that place, not unmindful of his determined purpose to retain jurisdiction over the region, he issued a proclamation to the people in which he denounced the actions of the authorities of the province of Pennsylvania in "unduly laying claim to a very extensive and "valuable quantity of His Majesty's territory." He also sets forth the ancient claim of the colony of Virginia to the same territory and his own right, under His Majesty, to govern the same. This remarkable document is dated "Fort Dunmore, "September 17, 1774." After the whereas, it concludes with the following sweeping order: "I do hereby, in His Majesty's "name, require and command all His Majesty's subjects west "of Laurel Hill to pay due respect to this my proclamation, "strictly prohibiting the execution of any act of authority on "behalf of the Province of Pennsylvania at their peril in this "country; but on the contrary, that a due regard and entire "obedience to the laws of His Majesty's colony of Virginia, "under my administration, be observed." Governor Penn did not permit Dunmore's proclamation to pass without notice. Attention was called to it by a counter pronunciamento from Philadelphia, dated the 12th of October, in which the Governor says, in substance, that, although the western limits of Pennsylvania were not fixed by any authority from the Crown, it has been demonstrated by lines accurately run that the country west of Laurel Hill, including Fort Pitt, was within the charter bounds of the province; that it had been in great part actually held and settled under grants from the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania; and that peaceable jurisdiction had been exercised over it until the late "strange claim set up by the Earl "of Dunmore." In justice to the Proprietaries, who were only desirous of securing their own undoubted property from the encroachment of others, he says, further: "I have thought, "with the advice of council, to issue this, my proclamation, "hereby requiring all persons west of Laurel Hill to retain "their settlements as aforesaid made under this province, and "to pay all due obedience to the laws of this government; and "all magistrates and other officers who hold commissions or "offices under this government, to proceed as usual in the ad-"ministration of justice, without paying the least regard to "the said recited proclamation until His Majesty's pleasure "shall be known in the premises, at the same time strictly "charging and enjoining the said inhabitants and magistrates "to use their utmost endeavors to preserve peace and good order." While the magistrates of Pennsylvania were thus instructed to maintain their jurisdiction, they were requested, in view of the fact that Dunmore had an organized militia force to sustain his pretentions, to be cautious in entering into conflict with his officers, and not to proceed to criminal prosecution against them for endeavoring to enforce the laws of Virginia. At the close of the Indian war in October, 1774, Dunmore returned to Virginia, first causing the arrest of Thomas Smith, at Redstone, for acting as a Pennsylvania magistrate, placing him under bonds with two sureties to appear at a court to be held at Pittsburg, or Fort Dunmore, as it was now called by the Virginians. The territory claimed by Dunmore at that time was treated as part of Augusta county, and the time fixed for the court was the 20th of December, 1774; a postponement occurred and it was not until the 21st of February, 1775, that the first court was held at Fort Dunmore. At this time the magistrates appointed by Dunmore appeared, and, after taking the oath of office, took their seats as justices of the court; and from then until the settlement of the boundary, in 1780, dual sets of officers asserted their right to exercise authority over the same people. Among the magistrates of Dunmore's court was George Crogan, a holder of rights to four thousand five hundred acres of land by applications entered in April, 1769, under the Proprietary government of Pennsylvania.

But thrilling and far-reaching events were rapidly approaching to end the participation of the royal Governors of Pennsylvania and Virginia in Colonial affairs. The American revolution was at hand, and while the people who settled in the valleys of the Ohio and Monongahela were partisans of either Virginia or Pennsylvania, as their interests may have influenced them, they were still sufficiently patriotic to unite as brothers to uphold and defend the liberty and independence of the United Colonies against a common foe. Dunmore and Connelly disappear from the scenes of their activities at the outbreak of the revolution, and leave the unsettled and perplexing boundary contention to be determined, after their departure, by the two interested colonies, which are so soon to be endowed with the dignity and honor of free and independent statehood. When the authorities of the two states came to consider the question it was manifest that a much better spirit prevailed. The importance of an early settlement was fully realized by both states, and in December, 1776, the Virginia legislature proposed as an adjustment that the western line of Maryland should be extended northward to the line of the fortieth degree of latitude, and thence westwardly along that parallel "until the distance of five degrees of longitude from the Delaware shall be accomplished." This offer was a marked and generous recession from the demand of Dunmore for all the territory west of Laurel Hill, as it would give to Virginia only a part of the county of Fayette, all of the county of Greene, and a very small corner of the county of Washington, but no formal action was taken by

Pennsylvania on this proposition. In the year 1778 another proposition was made by Virginia for the appointment of a joint commission, which proposition was accepted by Pennsylvania the following year. Commissioners were duly appointed by both states, George Bryan, John Ewing and David Rittenhouse on the part of Pennsylvania, and James Madison and Robert Andrews on the part of Virginia, who met at Baltimore on the 27th day of August, 1779. A number of letters passed between these commissioners, in which the claims of each state was presented with proper dignity and in a commendable spirit. Concessions were made by each, until, on the 31st day of August, the fourth day of their session, an agreement in the following words, practically the settlement of the long pending controversy, was reached:

"We, James Madison and Robert Andrews, commissioners for the state of Virginia, and George Bryan, John Ewing and David Rittenhouse, commissioners for the state of Pennsylvania, do hereby mutually, and in behalf of our respective states, ratify and confirm the following agreement, viz: To extend Mason and Dixon's line due west five degrees of longitude, to be computed from the river Delaware, for the southern boundary of Pennsylvania, and that a meridian drawn from the western extremity thereof to the northern limit of the said State be the western boundary of Pennsylvania forever."

This agreement was ratified by the legislature of Virginia on the 23d of June, 1780, and by the State of Pennsylvania on the 23d of September, following. The acts of both states provided for the appointment of commissioners to run and mark the lines between the states in accordance with the agreement, but, owing to unavoidable circumstances and unexpected hindrances, this work was for a period delayed, and not until 1784 was the southern line from the end of Mason and Dixon's line run out the full five degrees of longitude and the southwestern corner of the State established, after careful astronomical observations by the scientists of the commission. The meridian line from the southwestern corner to the Ohio river was run in 1785, and from the Ohio river to Lake Erie in 1786. The first cause of delay in the running of the lines was the invasion of Virginia by the British army, in 1781, which resulted in considerable derangement and confusion in the affairs of that state; and, next, interference by a number of Virginia partisans, who still claimed allegiance to that state, with Alexander McClean, when that gentleman attempted, in 1782 to establish a temporary line of jurisdiction. This was finally accomplished, and the long standing and, at times, serious boundary contention was ended. From that time until the present the lines then established have marked the boundaries between the respective states.

As heretofore remarked, the territory in dispute was first treated by the Virginians as part of Augusta county, of that state, but it was subsequently divided into three counties, called Ohio, Manongalia and Yohogania. A land office, in charge of a surveyor, was established in each county, and, as settlements were encouraged, many rights for lands under Virginia laws were entered and surveyed. In the records of the land department these rights are known as "Virginia Entries," and consisted of state, pre-emption, treasury and military warrants. The terms under which lands were held by Virginia rights were fixed in the warrants, but in most of these warrants the purchase money was as low as ten shillings sterling for a hundred acres. The entries number over one thousand, and cover over an area of six hundred and thirty-three thousand acres of land. Upon many of the entries, however, surveys were never made or returned, and, of course, titles to them under Pennsylvania laws never completed. The description of these tracts as they are recorded in the book of entries, and as they are written in the surveys, are quite vague and indefinite, the location usually given being that of a stream, as "on Peter's Creek," "on the waters of the Shirtie (for Chartiers)," "on Pigeon Creek," "on X mile creek," "on Racoon creek," or on the Ohio, Monongalia, or "Yough," as the case might be.

The authorities of Virginia, after the agreement of the boundary commissioners at Baltimore, but before the ratification of the same by the two states, appointed a number of persons to act as commissioners to adjust titles by hearing proofs and granting certificates to claimants to lands on rights acquired under the laws of that state. The appearance of these commissioners on the Monongahela, and their proceedings were the cause of considerable uneasiness and some indignation on the part of Pennsylvanians, who feared that new rights might be granted under Virginia laws, in violation of the agreement, and also that settlers holding under Pennsylvania rights might be dispossessed of their lands by the summary action of these commissioners. An appeal was made to Congress by the Supreme Executive Council, through the Pennsylvania representatives, which resulted in the adoption of the following preamble and resolution in relation to the new contention by that body on the 27th of December, 1779:

"Whereas, It appears to Congress from the representations of the delegates of the State of Pennsylvania that disputes had arisen between the states of Pennsylvania and Virginia relative to the extent of their boundaries, which may probably be productive of serious evils to both states, and tend to lessen their exertions in the common defense, therefore, Resolved, That it be recommended to the contending parties not to grant any part of the disputed land, or to disturb possessions of any persons living thereon, and to avoid every appearance of force until the dispute can be amicably adjusted by both states, or be brought to a just decision by the intervention of Congress: That possession forcibly taken be restored to the original possessors, and things be placed in the situation in which they were at the commencement of the present war without prejudice to the claims of either party."

At the time the above resolution of Congress was passed, the agreement of the boundary commissioners had been ratified and confirmed, and Pennsylvania had unquestionable jurisdiction over the territory so long in dispute. On the following day, however, December 28, 1779, a proclamation was directed to the people of Pennsylvania, signed by Joseph Reed, president of the Supreme Executive Council, by which all officers, civil and military, and others, subjects of the State, were required to pay due obedience and respect to the resolution, but grantees of lands under the State were encouraged "to continue in the cultivation and improvement of their several estates, notwithstanding any clams or pretences set up by the state of Virginia." They were also assured that they would receive "protection and support" while they continued in duty and obedience to the laws and government of the State. The uneasy feeling aroused by the presence of the Virginia commissioners did not cease with the action of Congress in recommending that grants of land should not be made within the disputed district, and in March, 1780, the Supreme Executive Council again passed a series of strong resolutions, with a letter—which reads like a manifesto of war—to the representatives of the State in Congress; but no further attention was given to the matter by Congress. The danger to Pensylvania rights by the presence of the Virginia agents or commissioners had no doubt been exaggerated, and soon afterward the excitement and bad feeling caused by their presence apparently passed away. Certain it is that nearly all the surveys of Virginia entries now in the land office show that they were made in pursuance of the certificates granted by these commissioners, and were duly recognized and accepted by the land officers of Pennsylvania. Three fac similie copies of surveys on file in the Department are herewith given for the purpose of showing the forms of certificates thereto appended. The first tract is situated in Fayette county, near Brownsville. The second, on Peter's creek, in Washington county, on which Cox's fort was located. The third is situated in the last named county, also on Peter's creek, where the town of Finleyville now stands. A fourth draft is given for the purpose of showing the location of Redstone Old Fort, on which the town of Brownsville is built. This last named survey was made under a Pennsylvania right, application No. 3583; entered July 3, 1769.

A land office under the Commonwealth was first established by an act of the Legislature, passed the 9th of April, 1781. The purpose of this act was to enable persons who held unpatented rights to land obtained from the Proprietary government prior to December 10, 1776, to pay such arrearage of purchase money as might be due thereon, and complete their titles by obtaining patents. This act was followed by another on the 5th of April, 1782, which provided for a Board of Property to consist of the President or Vice President of the Supreme Executive Council, a member of the same to be appointed by the Council, the Secretary of the Land Office, the Receiver General and the Surveyor General, whose duty it was made "to hear and determine in all cases of controversy "or caveats, in all matters of difficulty or irregularity touch- "ing escheats, warrants on escheats, warrants to agree, rights "of pre-emption, promises, imperfect titles or otherwise," which heretofore had arisen, or thereafter might arise, in transacting the business of the land office. The first recorded action taken by this board in relation to Virginia rights was on the 15th of September, 1784, when it was "Resolved, "That the Surveyor General issue his orders forthwith to his "deputies in the counties of Westmoreland, Washington and "Fayette, that upon applications made to them by any persons "claiming lands within their districts respectively by virtue "of rights acquired under, founded on, or recognized by the "laws of Virginia, they survey the said lands for such persons, "first giving public notice of the time when such surveys shall "be made." The deputies were further required to make return of such surveys to the Surveyor General, giving copies of the "grants, entries or vouchers" on which the applicant requested the surveys to be made, to note any interferences with rights granted under Pennsylvania, and to make such observations as would be useful for decisions in cases of disputes; and to expedite the determination of disputes they were requested to urge the parties interested to have depositions respecting the tracts taken before a magistrate in the neighborhood, to be transmitted with the returns of surveys and to be present at the taking of such depositions. The deputies were also required to certify whether the lands had been at any time surveyed upon Pennsylvania claims, or whether such lands had been applied for by the applicants or others. There was still considerable delay and trouble in making surveys and adjusting claims under Virginia rights, owing principally to a lack of information on the part of deputy surveyors as to the exact terms of the agreement between the states, and the absence of any official data giving the names of persons really entitled to lands. There wer many such persons with a perfect right to apply for surveys, who were anxious to complete their titles by taking out patents under the Commonwealth as soon as possible, and complaints of the delays on the part of the surveyors were not slow in reaching the land office. To remedy this condition the Board of Property, on the 7th of March, 1785, adopted the following resolution. "Re-"solved, That for preventing delays upon applications to "deputy surveyors by persons claiming lands in the counties "of Westmoreland, Washington and Fayette, by virtue of "rights acquired under, founded on, or recognized by the laws "of Virginia, the Surveyor General forthwith furnish his depu-"ties with necessary transcripts of the papers communicated "by the government of Virginia to the Supreme Executive "Council, and by them put into his hands; that he enjoin them "to pay immediate attention to all applications appeared to be "supported by rights obtained as aforesaid before the 23d of "June, 1780. That in returns of all surveys made on such "applications they certify whether the particulars of descrip-"tion mentioned in the original entries correspond with the "lands owned by the applicants. That where such deputies "cannot conveniently attend the taking of depositions in dis-"puted cases they earnestly require both parties to be pres-"ent when they shall be taken in order to avoid the trouble "and expense they must otherwise unavoidably incur, and that "to give facility and dispatch in settling claims aforesaid it "be recommended to the Surveyor General to lessen the dis-"tricts and appoint a greater number of deputies, and that in "his choice of them he take all possible care to guard against "the appointment of any person influenced by prejudices upon "the subject of such claims."

The land office in Pennsylvania was closed in 1776 after the declaration of independence. When it was again opened in 1781, under the Commonwealth, it was for the purpose, as heretofore remarked, of permitting the completion of titles to lands held under grants from the Proprietary government; and not until the act of April 1, 1784, became a law, was provision made for the sale of the unappropriated lands of the State. For that purpose the office was opened on the 1st of July of that year. It follows that all Pennsylvania claims that conflicted with Virginia rights must have been acquired under the Proprietary government, between the years 1769 and 1776. These rights were under applications entered in 1769, and following that year, after the application system had been abandoned, by warrant and survey. There were instances within the disputed territory where the same lands were granted to different persons by the authorities of each state, but provision was made for such conflicting claims in the acts ratifying the boundary agreement. For the adjustment of such cases it was enacted that in the decision of disputes "preference was "to be given to the elder or prior right in whichever of the states "the same had been acquired, the persons paying, within whose "boundary their land was included, the same purchase money "which would have been due from them to the state under "which they claimed the right, etc." So that a Virginia title, obtained in conformity with the laws of that state, if older than a Pennsylvania title, was to be preferred, and vice versa. To the honor of the courts of Pennsylvania it may be said that in all cases tried before them which involved a conflict between Pennsylvania and Virginia titles, the compact between the states was held to be inviolate, and by every consideration of moral and political obligation, to be upheld and enforced with fidelity; and to-day within the territory, so long a matter of earnest contention, land titles are so well settled that there is probably no section of the State, unless in the three original and a few others of the older counties, in which there is less land litigation than in the counties formed out of the disputed district.

An interesting case, growing out of conflicting grants of the same land to different persons by each state, was that of Sims vs. Irvine, decided May 28, 1799, in the Supreme Court of the United States on error from the Circuit Court of Pennsylvania. This case involved the title to Montour's Island, in the Ohio river, a few miles below the city of Pittsburg, now known as Neville Island, or Neville township, Allegheny county, and containing over eight hundred acres of valuable land. At the close of the war between Great Britain and France in 1763, the King of Great Britain by a proclamation "commanded and empowered" the governors of his several colonies and provinces to reward the officers and soldiers who had served in North America to the end of that war with grants of unappropriated land. Under that proclamation a Major William Douglas, an officer of a regiment from the colony of New Jersey, received a right to 5,000 acres, the quantity allotted to a field officer, which right for a valuable consideration (£100), he assigned in 1779 to Charles Sims, a citizen of Virginia. In May, 1780, Sims, as assignee of Douglas, received from the register of the Virginia land office, a military warrant for 5,000 acres, which it was asserted he delivered to the surveyor of Yohagany county, with directions to that officer that it be entered and located in several parcels, one of which was to be Montour's island. The book of Virginia entries in the land department of Pennsylvania contains the following entry: "Charles Syms, Military warrant, 5,000 acres, Racoon." Of these 5,000 acres, 3,002 acres were located on Racoon creek, were regularly surveyed without objection and in 1794 patented to the said Sims.

The Pennsylvania title for Montour's island was vested in General William Irvine, a distinguished soldier of the revolution, then the commanding officer at Pittsburg, who had rendered valuable service to the State while in that command, and received by an act of the Legislature, passed the 24th day of September, 1783, a pre-emption right. The act is entitled "An act to grant the right of pre-emption to an island, known by the name of Montour's island, in the Ohio river, to Brigadier General William Irvine." The Surveyor General was directed to cause a survey of the island to be made, at the cost of General Irvine, and have the same returned into the land office for confirmation by patent. This was done, and on the 18th of December, 1787, General Irvine, having first paid into the Receiver General's office the sum of two hundred and eighty-three pounds, thirteen shillings and six pence, the cost of the island at the rate of thirty pounds Pennsylvania currency per hundred acres (eighty cents an acre), received his patent.

A suit in ejectment in the Circuit court of Pennsylvania was then brought against General Irvine by Sims, to recover the island under his military grant. The jury in the court below found a special verdict, in which all the facts of the case, together with all the laws of both states relating to land grants are fully set forth, and on that finding the appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of the United States. One of the objections to the title of Sims was based on the alleged invalidity of the assignment to him by Douglas, under the laws of Virginia, but it was held that a military right to lands "acquired under a royal proclamation in 1763 was assignable, by the laws of Virginia, to an inhabitant of that state." Also that, "obtaining a warrant on such right, and locating it, gave the assignee a complete and equitable title, which was confirmed by the compact between Pennsylvania and Virgina." A finding of the jury was that Presley Neville and Matthew Richie, the deputy surveyors for Washington county, had received from the Surveyor General the list of entries which contained an entry for the land claimed by Sims and that on the 13th of April, 1787, they surveyed Montour's island and returned the survey into the Surveyor General's office, the "return of the survey setting forth that it was made for Charles Sims, assignee of William Douglas, and under the Virginia warrant, entry and location." The fact that a survey had been made and returned was admitted, but, in addition to the general prohibition to surveying islands in the Ohio river, it was objected to on the ground that the defendant had procured an actual survey of the island as early as the year 1783, while the plaintiff never attempted to procure a survey under his right until the year 1787, which survey it was contended, "could not divest the defndant's previous possession." Another objection to the survey of Sims was that the island, being in the Ohio river, formed no part of Washington county, and was not within the limits of the district of the deputy surveyors, and was therefore unauthorized by the laws of Pennsylvania, which confined deputy surveyors to their respective districts. It was, however, held by the court that the survey for Sims was legal. It may be remarked in this connection that the survey to which reference is thus made cannot be found among the records of this department, though there is evidence that such survey was actually made and returned. Other objections were urged against the right of Sims, but the decree of the court was in his favor, and General Irvine was compelled to surrender his title to Montour's island. To indemnify him for his loss the State Legislature gave him a State reservation of 2,000 acres that had been surveyed at the mouth of Harbor creek, on Lake Erie, in the county of Erie.

AN ACCOUNT

DONATION LANDS

PENNSYLVANIA.

[This paper prepared by Major Robert H. Foster, of the Department of Internal Affairs and printed in the Annual Report for 1893, is so appropriate in this connection, as it is lucid in its narration, that it is given herewith.]

THE DONATION LANDS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

As early as the seventh day of March, 1780, while the war of the American revolution was still in active progress, and being vigorously waged by the hostile armies in the field, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania by resolution made a promise of "certain donations and quantities of land" to the soldiers of the State, known as the "Pennsylvania Line," then serving in the Federal Army. It was provided that these lands should be "surveyed and divided off" at the end of the war, and allotted to those entitled to receive them according to their several ranks. In order to comply with the letter and intention of the resolution of March, 1780, by the same act passed by the General Assembly March 12, 1783, in which it was provided that certain lands should be set apart and sold for the purpose of redeeming the certificates of depreciation given to the soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line, under the act of December 18, 1780, it was also provided that "a certain tract of country, beginning at the mouth of Mogulbughtiton creek;* thence up the Allegheny river to the mouth of Cagnawaga creek;† thence due north to the northern boundary of the State; thence west by said boundary, to the northwest corner of the State; thence south, by the western boundary of the State, to the northwest corner of lands appropriated by this act for discharging the certificates‡ herein mentioned; and thence by the same lands east to the place of beginning; which said tract of country shall be reserved and set apart for the only and sole use of fulfilling and carrying into execution the said resolve."

Under Section VI, of the same act, all rights, titles or claims to land with the described bounds, whether obtained from the Indians, the late Proprietaries, or any other person or persons, were declared to be null and void, thus reserving the entire tract from sale or settlement until after the allotments of the soldiers were duly made and their claims fully satisfied. By section VII, officers and privates were to be allowed two years after the declaration of peace in which to make their applications, and in case of death occurring to any one before his application was made, an additional year was allowed to the heirs, executors or administrators of such person, and thereafter unlocated tracts were to be disposed of upon such terms as the Legislature might direct. It may be said in passing, however, that the period for making applications was a number of times extended by subsequent legislation. By the last section of the act, Section VIII, non-commissioned officers and privates were prohibited from selling their shares of the land appropriated to their use until after the same had been "actually surveyed and laid off," the act declaring such sales or conveyances absolutely null and void. In this last section of the act a distinction was made between commissioned officers and the non-commissioned officers and privates, probably under an impression that the former were able to take better care of their interests than the latter. It will be observed that the territory thus set apart under the act of December 12, 1783, for donation purposes, comprises parts of the present counties of Lawrence, Butler, Armstrong, Venango, Forest and Warren, all the counties of Mercer and Crawford, and that portion of Erie which lies south of the triangle. The territory was then a wild and unbroken wilderness, and we can at this day, after a century of progress and civilization, truly regard this section of our great Commonwealth, now filled as it is with a prosperous and industrious population that has wrought wonders of advancement and improvement, as a splendid, a princely domain, devoted in our early history to a noble purpose.

*Now known as Mahoning creek, in Armstrong county.
†Conewago creek, in Warren county.

As a further reward for the services of the soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line, the next act of the General Assembly was one that exempted from taxation during lifetime the land which fell to the lot of each, unless the same was transferred or assigned to another person, and then follows soon after the purchase of 1784, the acts of March 24, 1785, which directed the mode by which the allowances of lands to be distributed to the troops, and providing that legal titles, vesting in them the right of ownership, be granted to them. The details of the plan of distribution provided in this act are particular and comprehensive. The Surveyor General was directed forthwith to appoint Deputy Surveyors for the purpose of surveying the lots, who were to give bonds in the sum of eight hundred dollars each for the faithful performance of their duties, and to follow such instructions as they might from time to time receive from the Surveyor General and the Supreme Executive Council of the State.

Another section describes the persons who should be entitled to land; and Section V, in order to comply with a previous resolution of the General Assembly, included the names of Baron Steuben, who was to receive a grant equal to that of a Major General of the Pennsylvania Line, and Lieutenant Colonel Tilghman, a grant equal to that of a Lieutenant Colonel of the same line, while by Section VI, other troops, raised under resolutions of February and December, 1780, were also declared to be entitled to lands according to their rank and pay respectively. Section X, enacted that the lots should be of four descriptions: the first to contain five hundred acres each, the second three hundred acres each, the third, two hundred and fifty acres each, and the fourth, two hundred acres each, with the allowance of six per cent.; and before proceeding to perform their duties under the act the deputies were required to subscribe an oath or affirmation that in making their surveys they would not choose out the best lands for the purpose of favoring any one of the four classes to the prejudice or injury of the others, or of the State. This section also provides for the proper marking of the lines, the numbering of the lots and the transmission of field notes, drafts and returns to the Surveyor General's Office. Complete lists of all persons entitled to land under the act, with their rank and the quantity of land to be allotted to each were to be furnished by the Comptroller General to the Supreme Executive Council in order that proper instructions, through the Surveyor General, might be given to Surveyors in the field as to the number of lots to be surveyed and the quantities in which they were to be laid off; and when a sufficient number of lots were surveyed and returned, a draft of the whole was to be made and deposited in the Rolls Office as a public record to serve in lieu of recording the patents. The wisdom of the last provision may be considered extremely doubtful, as has since been demonstrated in the fact that there are many patents for donation lands in existence of which the patent books of the Land Office do not contain a line, and no little trouble in tracing title to certain of these tracts has been experienced in consequence of that defect in the act. The patent books should have contained the enrollment of all. Section VIII provides minute directions for the distribution of the lots to claimants by lottery. Tickets representing the four classes, carefully numbered and tied "with silken thread," were to be placed in four wheels "like unto lottery wheels," from which the applicants were required to draw for their respective allotments. When not in use for drawing the wheels were to be sealed and kept in the custody of a committee of the members of the Supreme Executive Council, the same committee having the right to judge and determine the right of every applicant to receive a grant, allowing in cases of doubt or difficulty an appeal to the council, whose decision was to be final. By this section of the act it was further provided that a Major General should draw four tickets from the wheel containing the numbers on the five hundred acre lots; a Brigadier General, three tickets from the same wheel; a Colonel, two tickets from the same wheel; a Lieutenant Colonel, one ticket from the same wheel and one from the wheel containing the numbers on the three hundred acre lots; a Surgeon, Chaplain or Major, two tickets from the wheel containing the numbers on the three hundred acre lots; a Captain, one ticket from the wheel containing the numbers on the five hundred acre lots; a Lieutenant, two tickets from the wheel containing the numbers on the two hundred acre lots; an Ensign or Regimental Surgeon's Mate, one ticket from the wheel containing the numbers on the three hundred acre lots; a Sergeant, Sergeant-Major or Quartermaster Sergeant, one ticket from the wheel containing the numbers on the two hundred and fifty acre lots, and a Drum-Major, Fife-Major, Drummer, Fifer, Corporal or Private, one ticket from the wheel containing the numbers on the two hundred acre lots. It will be seen that the allotment according to rank was therefore as follows: To a Major General, two thousand acres; a Brigadier General, fifteen hundred acres; a Colonel, one thousand acre; a Lieutenant Colonel, eight hundred acres; a Surgeon, Chaplain or Major, six hundred acres; a Captain, five hundred acres; a Lieutenant, four hundred acres; an Ensign or Regimental Surgeon's Mate, three hundred acres; a Sergeant, Sergeant Major or Quartermaster Sergeant, two hundred acres and a Drum-Major, Fife-Major, Drummer or Fifer or Private, two hundred acres. Another section provides for the issuing of patents, to be signed, sealed and delivered by the president or vice president of the Supreme Executive Council and prescribing a form for the same, the consideration being "services rendered by ....., in the late army of the United States." he only expense to which applicants were to be subjected was the fee for "surveying, drafting and returning," including the cost of chain bearers, markers, etc. The sum fixed was three pounds for a lot of five hundred acres; two pounds for a lot of three hundred acres, and one pound ten shillings for lots of two hundred and fifty and two hundred acres, to be paid by each applicant before he could be permitted to draw for his lot. There were other provisions of the act for the purpose of fully carrying into effect the intentions of the General Assembly in making the grant, especially in sections XX and XXI, which provided for the employment of an agent for the purpose of exploration to ascertain and note the quality of the land and the topographic features of the country. This agent was particularly to note such part of land as he might deem unfit for cultivation.

Three days before the act of March 25, 1785, became a law a committee chosen by the officers of the Pennsylvania Line, who were no doubt acquainted with the provisions of the proposed law, and concerned for their own interests, united in a letter to the Supreme Executive Council, recommending the appointment of General William Irvine, the commanding officer at Fort Pitt, as agent to explore the lands. After calling attention to the provisions in the proposed law for the employment of such agent, they say: "We therefore pray that Council will be pleased to appoint William Irvine, Esq., to that office, if the bill passes in its present state, as he is a gentleman well acquainted with the land appropriated for that purpose, and who is, we humbly conceive, worthy your confidence, as well as that of your most humble servants." (Penn'a Archives, Vol. X, page 425.) The Supreme Executive Council acted so promptly upon the recommendation of the committee of officers, that two days after the bill became a law, General Irvine was appointed agent, and having on the same day, March 26, 1785, subscribed his oath of office, an order for ninety pounds was issued in his favor as part of his pay. On the same day he received his instructions, which appear in Volume X, page 427, Pennsylvania Archives. They read as follows:

In Council, March 26, 1785.

"Sir: By virtue of the authority vested in us by the act of assembly, for directing the Mode of distributing Donation Lands, promised to the troops of this Commonwealth." We have appointed you Agent to perform the duties of this office, it will be necessary that with all possible Dispatch & accuracy, you explore the country to be laid off agreeably to Directions of that Act, noting the quality of the land in the several parts thereof, the hills, mountains, waters, creeks, marshes, uplands, bottom lands, &c., and such other occurrences as may deserve notice with their situation, & distance, but particularly the parts of the land which you may deem unfit for cultivation, &c.; and from time to time transmitting us your remarks, notes and description of the Country."

This letter is signed by John Dickinson, and addressed to "The Honorable General William Irvine." General Irvine appears to have entered upon his duties of exploration, under the instructions given him, with little delay, and to have exercised good judgment, assiduity and perseverance in pursuing them. A report of his notes and observations was transmitted to President Dickinson, in a letter dated at Carlisle, August 17, 1786. These papers are replete with interest and are here re-produced as they appear in Volume XI, pages 513 to 520, Pennsylvania Archives.

Carlisle, August 17, 1785.

To His Excellency, John Dickinson, Esq.,

"Sir: You have herewith transmitted my description of the donation tract of country, together with a sketch. These will, I hope, prove satisfactory to your Excellency and the honorable the council, and answer the public purposes for which they are designed.

I observed in a former letter that few of the deputy surveyors attended on my first going into the country, these agreed to postpone the business till September. On my return to Fort Pitt, after my tour, so late as July I found three of the gentlemen preparing to set out to survey. I did not consider it my duty to attend so small a number of them, as it would be spending the public money and my own time to little purpose, besides the law gives me no other control over them than to report to the Surveyor General should they neglect or delay performing their duty. And I find sundry of them conceive they have not only a right, but are in some measure obliged to survey the land, good or bad, as each of them are instructed to survey a certain number of lots, for instance, 260 of different descriptions and sizes, without any regard to water, bottom, upland or any of the usual modes observed in laying of land. "Several of the districts has not 20 lots of good land in them, yet the deputies are each instructed to survey upwards of 260, when others contain perhaps double the quantity directed."

Unless the Surveyor General alters his instructions materially, or council, or the Assembly, take order in the premises, the whole end designed will be defeated as no man of common understanding will accept of pay for surveying such land.

I am of opinion there is more than sufficient good land on the tract appropriated to answer the purpose, provided the western boundary line of the State strikes the west branch of Beaver Creek as high as is generally supposed. Mr. McLane is of opinion it will cross, at least sixteen miles higher than where his line does. In this case I propose this alteration for the consideration of council, that the deputies be instructed to begin at the west line of the State and survey all the land on the several branches of Beaver creek within the tract, before any other is laid off, if this should not prove sufficient, then proceed to the forks and upper branches of Tunck and Oil Creeks for the remainder. This mode will, I conceive, be better for the troops as their settlement, or vicinity to others will be more compact, consequently the land more valuable, and it will certainly be more advantageous to the State, as whatever lands of value may be along the river and upper end of the tract will be reserved unculled, to dispose of as may be judged most expedient; and notwithstanding the spots of good land are detached; yet some of them are of such excellent quality, and so well situated on account of water carriage, easy communication with Lake Erie, and so well calculated for stock farms, that the State may be much benefited by reserving them for future disposal.

This mode will occasion an alteration, perhaps, with respect to the number of deputies, as fewer than the present number appointed would execute this mode best, and four or five would doubtless perform the business, provided they are allowed to employ assistants; these four or five might have constant communication with each other, and act as it were superintendents over the assistants, by which they could determine when the number of lots of each class required is done. I know it may be urged in opposition to this, that sundry of these gentlemen have already gone to considerable expense in equipping themselves for the business and that it will be hard to dismiss them under these circumstances. To this I answer that the private advantage of two or three men ought not to be put in competition with that of as many thousands, particularly where the interest of the State at large is concerned also. I farther answer that these men may be employed by the principals, and will venture to assert that some of them are scarce fit even for this subordinate station, as perhaps the first chain or compass they ever saw was purchased for this occasion. The number, however, that I have proposed may be found among the gentlemen who understand both theory and practice extremely well, and are men of approved integrity, and I believe the State will find their account in this or some such mode, if they even pay the trifling expense the gentlemen have been at.

I have the honor to be,
With greatest respect,
Sir, Your Excellency's
Most humble servant,
WM. IRVINE.

Notes taken and observations made (by) the Agents appointed to explore the tract of country presented by the State to the late troops of the Pennsylvania Line, of the American Army.

In exploring the donation land, I began on the Line run by Mr. McLane, between that and the tracts appropriated for redeeming depreciation certificates which he ascertained by a due North Line to be near thirty miles from Fort Pitt, and by the Common computation along the path leading from Fort Pitt to Venango on the mouth of French Creek, which some affirm was actually measured by the French when they possessed that country. I found it forty miles; East of this path along Mr. McLanes Line for five or six miles, the land is pretty level, well watered with small springs, and of tolerable quality, but from thence to the Allegheny River which is about Twenty-five miles due East, there is no land worth mentioning fit for cultivation; as far as French Creek all between the Venango Path and the Allegheny there is very little land fit for cultivation, as it is a continued chain of high barren mountains except small breaches for Creeks and Rivulets to disembogue themselves into the River. These have very small bottoms.

As I proceeded along the path leading to French Creek about five miles to a Branch of Beaver, or rather in this place called Canaghqunese, I found the land of a mixed quality, some very strong and broken with large quantities of fallen Chestnut, interspersed with strips covered with Hickory, lofty oak, and for under wood or Brush, Dogwood, Hazel, &c.; along the Creek very fine rich and extensive bottoms in general fit for meadows; from hence to another branch of said Creek called Flat Rock Creek, about ten miles distant, the land is generally thin, stony and broken, loaded, however, with Chestnut Timber, the greatest part of which lies flat on the earth, which renders it difficult traveling—at the usual crossing place on the last named Creek, there is a beautiful fall over a Rock ten or twelve feet high at the fording immediately above the fall, the bottom is one entire Rock, except some small perforations which is capacious enough to receive a horses foot and leg—it is here about forty yards wide and runs extremely rapid. From Flat Rock to Sandy Creek by Hutchins & Scull, called Lycomie, is about Twenty four miles; on the first twelve there are a considerable quantity of tolerable level land tho much broken with large stony flats, on which grows heavy burthens of Oak, Beech and Maple, particularly seven or eight miles from the Creek there is a plain or savannan three or four miles long, and at least two wide, without any thing to obstruct the prospect, except here and there a small grove of lofty Oaks, or Sugar Tree, on the skirts the ground rises gradually to a moderate heighth from which many fine springs descend, which water this fine Tract abundantly along these Rivulets small but fine spots of meadow may be made, from hence the remaining twelve miles to Sandy Creek is a ridge or mountain, which divides the waters of the Allegheny, the Beaver and Ohio, and is from East to West at least three times as long as it is broad—on the whole of this there is little fit for cultivation, yet some of it is well calculated for raising stock. But a person must be possessed of very large Tracts to enable him to do even this to purpose.

From Sandy to French Creek is about seven or eight miles from the mouth, but it soon Forks into many small runs, and it but a few miles from the mouth to the source—there are two or three small bottoms only on this Creek—to French Creek is one entire hill, no part of which is by any means fit for cultivation.

On the lower side, at the mouth of French Creek, where the Fort called Venango formerly stood, there is three or four hundred acres of what is commonly called upland or dry bottom, very good land. On the North East side, about one mile from the mouth, another good bottom begins of four or five hundred acres, and on the summits of the hills on the same side tho high, there is a few hundred acres of land fit for cultivation—this is all in this neighborhood nearer than the first fork of the Creek; which is about eight miles distant. On the Road leading from French to Oil Creek, within about three miles and a half of Venango, there is a bottom of fine land on the Bank of the Allegheny, containing four or five hundred acres, there is little beside to Oil Creek fit for cultivation.

French Creek is one hundred and fifty yards wide.

From French to Oil Creek is about eight miles—this is not laid down in any map, notwithstanding it is a large stream not less than eighty, or perhaps a hundred yards wide at the mouth, a considerable depth, both of which it retains to the first fork, which is at least twenty miles up, and I am certain is as capable of rafting timber or navigating large boats on as French Creek in the same seasons this high. On the North East or upper side of this creek, at the mouth, is four or five hundred acres of good bottom, and about a mile up there is another small bottom on the South West side, which is all the good land to the first fork.

Oil Creek has taken its name from an oil or bituminous matter being found floating on the surface. Many cures are attributed to this oil by the natives, and lately by some whites, particularly Rheumatic pains and old ulcers; it has hitherto been taken for granted that the water of the Creek was impregnated with it, as it was found in so many places, but I have found this to be an error, as I examined it carefully and found it issuing out of two places only—these two are about four hundred yards distant from (each) other, and on opposite sides of the Creek. It rises in the bed of the Creek at very low water, in a dry season I am told it is found without any mixture of water, and is pure oil; it rises, when the creek is high, from the bottom in small globules, when these reach the surface they break and expand to a surprizing extent, and the flake varies in color as it expands; at first it appears yellow and purple only, but as the rays of the sun reaches it in more directions, the colors appear to multiply into a greater number than can at once be comprehended.

From Oil Creek to Cuskakushing, an old Indian Town, is about seventeen miles—the whole of this way is barren, high mountains, not fit for cultivation; the mountain presses so close on the River that it is almost impassable, and by no means impractible when the River is high, then travelers either on foot or horseback are obliged to ascend the mountain and proceed along the summit.

At Cuskushing there is a narrow bottom about two miles long, good land and a very fine Island fifty or sixty acres, where the Indians formerly planted corn. From Cuskushing to another old Indian Town, also on the Bank of the River, is about six miles; this place is called Canenacai or Hickory Bottom; here is a few hundred acres of good land and some small Islands, from hence to a place named by the natives the Burying Ground, from a tradition they have that some extraordinary man was burried there many hundred years ago, is about thirteen miles; most of this way is also a barren and very high mountain, and you have to travel greatest part of the way in the Bed of the River. To Brokenstraw Creek, or Bockaloons, from the last named place is about fourteen miles, here the hills are not so high or barren, and there are sundry good bottoms along the River. About half way there is a hill called by the Indians Paint Hill, where they find very good red oker. Brokenstraw is thirty yards wide, there is a fine situation and good bottom near the mouth on both sides, but a little way up the creek large hills covered with pine make their appearance. From Brokenstraw to Canewago is eight or nine miles here is a narrow bottom, interspersed with good dry land, and meadow ground all the way, and there is a remarkable fine tract at the mouth of Conewago, of a thousand or perhaps more acres, from the whole of which you command a view up and down the main branch of Allegheny, and also up Conewagoo a considerable distance. Conewagoo is one hundred and fifty yards wide, and is navigable for large boats up to the head of Jadaque Lake, which is upwards of fifty mile from its junction with the east branch of the River. The head of Judaque Lake is said to be only twelve miles from Lake Erie, where it is also said the French formerly had a Fort, and a good Waggon Road from it to the Lake. Conewagoo forks about thirty miles from the mouth of the East Branch, is lost in a morass where the Indians frequently carried their canoes across into a large creek called the Cateraque, which empties into the Lake forty or fifty miles above Niagara.

This account of the branches of Conewagoo I had from my guide, an Indian Chief of the Senecas, a native of the place, and an intelligent white man, who traversed all this country repeatedly. I have every reason to believe the facts are so—tho I do not know them actually to be so as I went only a small distance up this creek, being informed there is no land fit for cultivation to the first fork or to the lower end of Jadaque Lake, which begins seven miles up the West Branch, except what has already been mentioned at the mouth of the creek, the appearance of the country, in a view taken from the summit of one of the high hills, fully justified this report, as nothing can be seen but one large chain of mountains towering above another—here, perhaps, it may not be amiss to insert the supposed distances in a collected view—and first,

For the same reason that I did not proceed far up Conawagoo, I returned the most direct Road to the burying ground —here three old Indian paths take off, one to Cayahaga, on Lake Erie, one to Cuskusky, on the West branch of Beaver Creek, and the third to a Salt Spring, higher up the same branch of Beaver—from hence I crossed the chain of mountains, which runs along the River, and in traveling what I computed to be about twenty-five miles, reached the first fork on Oil Creek, on the most easterly Branches there are vast quantities of White Pine, fit for masts, Boards, &c. In this fork is a large Body of tolerable good land, tho high, and along the West Branch very rich and extensive Bottoms fit for meadow, of the first quality—this continues about fifteen miles along the creek, which is a beautiful stream, from thirty to forty yards wide, and pretty deep. From the West Branch of Oil Creek I proceeded on a Westerly course, about ten miles along a ridge which is difficult to ascend, being high and steep, but when you get up it is flat on the summit, four or five miles broad, very level, and fine springs issue from the declivity on both sides, the land heavily loaded with Hickory, large Oak, Maple, and very large Chestnut. From the West end of this ridge several large springs rise, which form the most easterly branch of French Creek—there are five branches of this creek, which is called Sugar Creek, by Mr. Hutchins, all of which have fine Bottoms, excellent for meadow and pasturage, but the upland or ridges between are stony, cold, moist and broken, chiefly covered with Beech, Pine and scrubby Chestnut.

At the fork or junction of Sugar Creek with the main or West Branch of French Creek, (which is only eight miles up from Venango,) there is some fine plains or savannahs, and a large quantity of meadow ground—there are but few bottoms, and little or no upland besides what is above mentioned, for twenty miles up this branch, where there is a considerable quantity of excellent meadow ground, beside which there is not much good land until you reach Le Berroff (Boeuf's).

From Venango, I returned along the path leading to Pittsburg to within about seven miles of Flat Rock Creek, here I took a West course along a large dividing ridge already noticed, about ten miles, where I struck a branch of Canaghquenese or Beaver, about thirty yards wide, and which joins Flat Rock before it empties into the main branch of Canaghquenese—on this creek is a very fine and larger bottoms, and in some places some good upland, tho' much broken with high, barren hills and some deep morasses. This creek is not laid down in any map that I have seen. After having explored this creek and lands adjacent, I proceeded on a South course till I struck Mr. McLene's line within eight miles of the great Beaver Creek, which I followed to the Creek; all this distance is very hilly, there are some small bottoms, but the major part of those eight miles is not fit for cultivation.

From where Mr. McLane's line strikes the great or West Branch of the Beaver, I continued exploring the country up the several western branches of the Beaver, Viz, the most Westerly, and two branches denominated the Shenango. The distance from the above named line to an old Moravian Town is three or four miles, from thence to Shenango, two and a half or three miles; thence to a fork or second branch, two miles; from the mouth of Shenango to Cuskuskey, on the West branch, is six or seven miles, but it was formerly all called Cuszuskey by the natives along this branch as high as the Salt spring, which is twenty-five miles from the mouth of Shenango. There is such a similarity in almost all the lands on all the branches of Beaver Creek, that a particular description of each would be mere (repetition). I shall therefore only briefly observe that the bottoms generally are the most excellent that can be well imagined, and are very extensive—the upland is hilly, and some bad, but most of the hills are fertile and very rich soil—from the falls of the Great Beaver up to the head of the West Branch, and twenty miles up the Shenango branch, is to a considerable distance on either side those creeks there is little land but may be cultivated, and I believe no country is better watered.

I herewith transmit a sketch of that part of the country only which my duty as agent obliged me to explore. This, together with the remarks herein contained will, I flatter myself give a juster idea of the tract than any map yet published. ,Tho' I do not pretend to say it is correct, as the distances are all supposed, and there are probably several omissions in this sketch, yet more creeks, hills, &c., are noticed than have been before and their real courses and near connections & division by Hills and Ridges ascertained.

No Creek is laid down or branch which is not upwards of Twenty yards wide—smaller runs are not noticed—on the whole I have endeavored as well in the remarks as in the sketch,* so far as I have gone, to answer the end for which I was appointed Agent, as well as in my power.

WM. IRVINE, Agent.

N. B. The dotted lines show the several courses taken in exploring the country on the sketch—besides the several offsets were made to gain summits of hills for the benefit of prospects. All the Branches of Canaghquense, which are six or seven in number, join and form one large Creek before it enters the Beaver, the junction is about eleven miles above the mouth of Beaver from above the falls and four below McLene's line. I have been unavoidably obliged to leave the North and West lines open in the sketch, as I could not do otherwise till these boundary lines are run; this also prevented my compleating the business, not being able to determine perhaps within several miles, where the line may run. I am persuaded the State of Pennsylvania might reap great advantages by paying early attention to the very easy several communications with Lake Erie from the western parts of their country, particularly Conewagoo; French Creek and the West Branch of Beaver, from a place called Mahoning to where it is navigable for small craft is but thirty miles to Cayahuga River, which empties into the lake. A good waggon road may be made from Fort Pitt to the mouth of French Creek, & all the way from the mouth of Beaver to Cayuhuga, which is not more than 80 miles. The breadth of the tract cannot be ascertained till the Western Boundary is run. Mr. McLene suspends for this reason extending his line further West than the Great Beaver, which he has found to be 47 miles from the mouth, Mogwolbughtitum, from this part of Beaver Creek it is conjected the West line of the State will run 10 or 12 miles."

In the meantime the authorities of the State were busy in perfecting the machinery necessary for carrying into effect the scheme for the allottment and distribution of the lands to those persons entitled to receive them. On the third of May, 1785, John Lukens, the Surveyor General, is informed that by the report of the Comptroller General the number of lots to be surveyed and the quantity of land that each should contain would be "177 lots of the first description, each containing 500 acres; 88 of the second description, each containing 300 acres; 186 of the third description, each containing 250 acres, and 2,119 of the fourth description, each containing 200 acres," making 2,570 lots of the various descriptions, and containing in the aggregate 585,200 acres of land. On the second of the same month the Surveyor General inform Council that he had nominated the following persons to Council "for their approbation, to be appointed Deputy Surveyors of the donation lands West of the Allegheny river, Vizt: Major William Alexander, Benjamin Lodge, Captain James Christie, Ephriam Douglass, Griffith Evans, James Dickinson, John Henderson, William Power, Junior, Peter Light, Andrew Henderson, James Dickinson James Hoge, David Watt of Sheman's Valley, Alexander McDowell." The territory in which the donation surveys were to be made was divided into ten districts* by the Surveyor General, after consultation with General Irvine, soon after the latter gentleman had received the appointment of Agent. The districts were numbered in regular order to the north from the north line of the depreciation lands—district No. 1, adjoining that line and district No. 10, covering parts the present counties of Erie and Warren. From a letter of the Surveyor General to Secretary Armstrong, dated May 14, 1785, in relation to the districts, there seems to have been some slight friction between the authorities in naming the Deputy Surveyors. According to Mr. Lukens, the Surveyors were named by him and General Irvine, "four of whom were officers of the Pennsylvania Line, and were recommended by their superior officers and were Practical Surveyors in the back counties, to which we added six more as per List sent to Council ye 5th inst." He then says, "At which Mr. Watts coming in, desired me to enter his son's name, which I did, and have also sent in the names of James Hoge & Peter Light, since for fear some of the first ten should disappoint us; four of the first ten are Commissioned & the others sent for now why the eleventh should be pushed before we hear some thing from the others, I should be glad to be informed, unless Council have some objection to some of the first." The trouble, whatever it may have been, soon disappeared, and the ten Surveyors appointed were William Alexander, for the first district, John Henderson, for the second district, Griffith Evans, for the third district, Andrew Henderson, for the fourth district, Benjamin Lodge, for the fifth district, James Christy, for the sixth district, William Power, for the seventh district, Alexander McDowell, for the eighth district, James Dickinson, for the ninth district, and David Watts, for the tenth district. With a single exception the persons named must have entered upon the performance of their duties very promptly and pursued them with commendable energy. Considering the character of the country in which their work was to be done, its wild and unsettled condition, and the difficulties to be encountered and overcome, the task before them was by no means an easy one. Except a few white traders along the Allegheny river, they would meet only Indians, and with their presence in those days there would always be an apprehension of lurking danger. The surveys of nine districts were, however, made with little or no difficulty so far as the records show, and were returned to the land office early in the year 1786, one district really on the 28th of December, 1785. There was an equal allotment of the number of tracts of each description to be surveyed to the ten districts—twenty tracts of 500 acres each, ten of 300 each, twenty-one of 250 acres each and two hundred and seventeen of 200 acres each to each district. The first district, William Alexander, Surveyor, was returned in February, 1786; the second, John Henderson, Surveyor, February 6, 1786; the third, Griffith Evans, Surveyor, December 28, 1785; the fourth, Andrew Henderson, Surveyor, January 12, 1786; the fifth, Benjamin Lodge, Surveyor, February 7, 1786; the sixth, James Christy, Surveyor, March 18 1786; the seventh, William Power, Surveyor, March 13, 1786; the eighth, Alexander McDowell, Surveyor, February 15, 1786, and the tenth, David Watts, Surveyor, February 12, 1786. The ninth district is omitted from the above statement. The Surveyor of that district, James Dickinson, does not apepar to have reached the locality assigned to him until after the others had completed their work. He Started some time in the fall of 1785 to make his surveys, and reached Venango, at which point it seems he was deterred from proceeding any further by fear of trouble with the Indians. After a consultation with several Indian Chiefs he determined to return home without making any surveys in the district. His explanation of this default on his part is found in a letter to the Surveyor General, dated "Pits Burg, 24th January, 1786," (?) in which he gives a statement of his interview with the Indians, his address to them and the answer of the Chief Whole Face. The letter of explanation and interview appear in Volume X, pages 740 and 741, Pennsylvania Archives and read as follows:

James Dickinson, to John Lukens,

Dear Sir: Agreeably to Commission and Instructions for Surveying Donation Lands No. 9, District I proceeded on my Errand as far as Venango: but not without hearing on my way a very great uneasiness among the Indians at the procedure of the State in the Purchase of those lands, whereupon I thought it necessary to stop there a few Days & consult some Indians Chief on the subject before I proceeded further where after the advice of the Pittsburg Traders Ther, I sent for by a Runner Whole Face, The Corn Planter, & Long Hair, three Senica Chiefs who were then out a hunting, two Days March from Venango. Whole Face & Long Hair came in & the Corn Planter refused.- At their coming in by an interpreter Elijah Matthews I informed them my Errand, they returned for answer, they could not then give me an answer to my Proposal but would in a few Days; I waited on them 4 & then they gave me a Hearing, which was as follows Verbatim. -At Mr. Thomas Wilkey's store at Venango, Present Mr. Thomas Wilkey, Captain Jacob Springer & Elijah Matthews. - Indians, The Chiefs Whole Face & Long Hair, with seven others.—

My Friend Mr. Whole Face,

I was sent here by the great Council of the State of Pennsylvania held at Philadelphia, to Measure some Lands a little to the Northward of this Place, which Land I am told the great Council had bought of our Brothers the Indians, whose sole Property they understood it to be But on my way Here I was told the Indians were not well Pleased we should measure those Lands. I thought it therefore best to stop with you a few Days in Order to know what your uneasiness was if in my Power to remove any obstacle in the Way; being fully assured the Great Council of the State would do every Thing on their side to keep alive Friendship, To maintain Peace, To Increase Friendship, To support a Union & to make Trade Flourish between their Brothers the Indians and themselves, as long as Time shall measure the rolling year, & uttermostly endeavorer the Hapiness of both Nations—Now my Brothers if there is any thing in the way of all these Things I have mentioned, I do wish & intreat you, to inform me frankly and if it can be in my power to serve to removing any such Thing as may obstruct our mutual Happiness, I shall always think myself happy of having it in my power so to do; or if you think some other Person more suitable to represent this Matter should be glad it was soon done & your objections to my Errand sent to the great Council at Philada.

To which Mr. Whole Face after consulting with the others gave the following answer,

Brother of the Big Knife,

Several Surveyors have been up here to Measure Lands the Last Summer and have gone Home. We know not what was their meaning, as none of them told us, but went on without so much as informing their Intent. When they came to our hunting Fires, we used them well without any Question & when they wanted any of our assistance we gave it freely. Many of our young Warriors are dissatisfied with (their) Conduct, who are in the English Interest and also with the Reward we received for the Lands Thinking it inadequate for so large a Body; it not being one pair of Mokosons a piece; they therefore would advise me not to proceed on my Business and to inform the thirteen Fires it was their opinion I was not safe to proceed, though they present would pledge their Faith for my safety against all Indians at Venango & the Hunters to the Southward of that place; yet would not answer for it to the Northward, not even one Mile. That in the Spring as early as possible the six Nations would hold a great Council at Fort Pitt where & when they & all their Brethren hoped to make an endless Peace with their Brothers of the thirteen Fires & hoped till then I would put by every Thought of proceeding on my Errand as being very Dangerous; & then they hoped every obstruction would be removed & we should walk the Woods together as Brothers aught to do, in Love &

Pleasure. And now my Brother tell your great Council of the thirteen Fires tis our Fault you do not go on and not yours.

This Dear Sir, with much more was pronounced in words and gestures of much warmth & earnest which made me conclude to proceed no further & return My feet being much bit with Frost detains my not coming at present, but will come down as soon as they are recovered a Little. In the mean time remain yours to serve with the utmost affection?

JAMES DICKINSON.

P. S. I have not wrote you the private conversation Directed. To John Lukens, Esqr., Surveyor General, Philadelphia.

The explanation of Mr. Dickinson was not satisfactory, as will be seen by a reference to the proceedings of the Supreme Executive Council at meetings held in Philadelphia, March 9th, and 10th, 1786, to be found in Volume XIV, pages 653 and 654, Colonial Records. Among the proceedings of the 9th the following appears: "On consideration of the delinquency of James Dickinson, a Deputy Surveyor of Donation lands, stated in a letter from Mr. Lukens, it was Ordered. That he be removed from Office, and that the Secretary General proceed to nominate a successor thereto;" and on the following day we find that "Griffith Evans, Esquire, was appointed a Deputy Surveyor of donation lands, in the room of James Dickinson, removed by an order of yesterday." This accounts for the omission of surveys from the ninth district in the first returns made to the Land Office, nor were any surveys for donation purposes subsequently made in the district. The reason for this may be found in a minute of the Supreme Executive Council May 5, 1786, Volume XV, page 16, Colonial Records. The following appears among the proceedings of that day: "A memorial from sundry officers of the late Pennsylvania line, stating that large bodies of excellent land remain yet unsurveyed on the waters of Beaver river, in the donation land, very far superior in value, quality, and situation, to the lands in district number nine, and praying that the number of lots designed for the ninth district may be surveyed on the aforesaid waters, by the Surveyor appointed to said district, was read and referred to the Surveyor General, who is directed to comply with the prayer of the said petition." Accordingly Griffith Evans, the successor of James Dickinson, immediately proceeded to locate the lots assigned to the ninth district in the unsurveyed parts of districts numbers one, two, and three, and on the 24th of July, 1786, made his returns to the Land Office. The return of the surveys made by Mr. Evans, in districts one, two and three, in place of those originally intended for the ninth district, completed the survey of all the districts and the connected drafts of each district, in a good state of preservation are now remaining in the Department of Internal Affairs. The number of lots returned was slightly in excess of the number the Surveyor General was directed to have surveyed. There were two hundred lots of 500 acres; one hundred of 300 acres; two hundred of 250 acres; and twenty-one hundred and seventy of 200 acres, making twenty-six hundred and eighty lots comprising 646,500 acres of land. Preparations were now begun for the distribution of the lots. The Surveyor General made his return to Council, and on the 31st day of August, 1786, the following order was placed upon the minutes: "Ordered, That the drawing of the lottery for, and the patenting of the said (donation) lots, shall commence on the first day of October next, to be continued one year from the 29th instant." The committee of members of the Supreme Executive Council selected to superintend the drawing of the lottery consisted of John Boyd, Jonathan Hoge, Stephen Balliff and William Brown, to which was shortly afterward added Peter Muhlenberg and Samuel Dean. The records do not show definitely how many applicants availed themselves of the privilege of drawing during the period first fixed for the lottery to remain open; but evidently Lieutenant Joseph Collier, was early on hand. He drew two lots of 200 acres each, No. 97 in the first district and No. 1,462 in the seventh district. A patent was issued to him on the 2nd day of October, one day after the drawing began, and it was probably the first one granted. That a large number of claimants made their drawings during the first period is evident, however, from the number of patents that were granted after the opening in October, 1786, and during the year 1787, though it was found necessary as the closing day approached to grant an extension of time to enable other claimants to appear who had failed to do so. A minute of Council, of August 29, 1787, Volume XV, page 263, Colonial Records, reads as follows: "WHEREAS, It is represented to this Board that there are many of the line of the State intitled to land that have not yet appeared by themselves or sent orders to draw for their lots; and by resolve of the board of the thirty-first of August, 1786, they will be precluded unless the time be prolonged so as to include one year from the commencement of drawing; therefore, RESOLVED, That the lottery continue open for applicants until the first day of October next, and this resolution be published, so that all concerned may have notice thereof."

The time was again extended for a period of one year by an act passed the 13th of September, 1788, and by subsequent legislative enactments there were numerous extensions, some of the acts making them also providing for the proper authentication of claims, and for other purposes affecting the rights of claimants. The extensions of time in which to present applications really continued under the various laws until April 1st, 1810, which was the last limit of time fixed, and from that day the offices were closed against any further applications.

Owing to the uncertainty which existed in regard to the northern boundary of the State when the tenth district was surveyed, a serious mistake occurred in the location of a large number of lots in that district. It was discovered after the boundary line between Pennsylvania and New York had been located in 1787, that many of the lots fell within the State of New York. This mistake involved one hundred and twenty lots that were wholly or in part within that State, thirty-one of them lying within the Erie triangle which did not become a part of Erie county, Pennsylvania, until 1792. Nearly the entire number of thes lots had been drawn from the lottery wheels by persons whose claims had been established, and patents had been granted to them before the error in the survey became known. In order that such persons should not suffer by an unfortunate and mistaken location of the land they had drawn, and thus be deprived of the reward promised to them the General Assembly on the 30th day of September, 1791 passed a law for their relief. The first section of the act provided that the Surveyor General should ascertain and report to the Governor the number of patents that had fallen within the State of New York, together with the number of acres contained in each patent and the names of the persons to whim such patents were issued, which report was to be printed in three newspapers in Philadelphia, with notice to all persons concerned to apply before the first day of December following to the Surveyor General, who was authorized to ascertain by lot the order of priority by which such persons should choose other lots. The second section provided that applicants should in their order of priority chose other lots out of any of the surveyed tracts not otherwise disposed of within any of the donation districts. The third section, that after such persons had made their choice, patents should be granted to them without fees, on the surrender for cancellation of the patents previously granted to them. They were also required to give quit claims to the Commonwealth for compensation on acount of any losses they may have suffered. This act was followed by another on the 10th of April, 1792, extending the limit of time fixed for receiving applications from December 1st, 1791, to July 1st, 1792, and directing the report of the Surveyor General to be printed in newspapers of Philadelphia, Lancaster, York, Chambersburg, Harrisburg, Carlisle and Pittsburg, with notice that application must be made within the time designated. Other legislation for the purpose of fully indemnifying the persons who held patents to these lots, and to secure to them all the benefits to which they were entitled under the act of March 12, 1783, and March 24, 1785, followed the acts above mentioned. The acts of April 5, 1793, and February 23, 1801, were of that character. In the last act the Comptroller General was directed to furnish to the Secretary of the Land Office a list of the names of such persons whose lots fell outside of the State, who had received no equivalent. It also provided that applications under the act should be made within three years by the applicant personally, his widow or children, or by his, her or their attorney. When made by an attorney he was "to declare under oath or affirmation that he had no interest in the claim otherwise than to serve the applicant." The Board of Property was given power to act in all case of dispute between applicants, and when lots were drawn the Secretary of the Land Office was directed to grant patents under the inspection of the Board of Property in the same manner as was formerly done by the Supreme Executive Council. There was no further legislation with special reference to the lots that were surveyed within the State of New York. Under the provisions of the laws recited the claims of all applicants who drew such lots were received when made within the limit of time prescribed, and properly adjusted.

*The estimates of the authorities at the time was that one hundred and forty lots fell wholly within the state of New York and twenty-three partly so, making one hundred and sixty-three in all. This was an over estimate. An actual count of the lots as laid down in the map of the district, if the line drawn thereon is correct, show the number affected by the mistake to have been as above stated. It was also afterwards discovered that a number of lots that had been drawn and released as lying in New York were found to be wholly in Pennsylvania, a fact shown in the preamble of an act passed April 2, 1802.

Another difficulty arose in relation to a large number of the lots surveyed in the second district because of the alleged inferior quality of the land laid off by the surveyor, John Henderson. In his notes and observations General Irvine says in reference to the character of the country which became part of that district, that "East of this *path along Mr. McLanes line for five or six miles, the land is pretty level, well watered with small springs, and of tolerable quality, but from thence to the Allegheny river which is about twenty-five miles due east, there is no land worth mentioning fit for cultivation." As it was the expressed intention of the General Assembly when the donation was made that only the best lands within the territory set apart by law should be surveyed for the purpose of the donation, it was thought wrong that so laudable a design on the part of the law makers should be defeated by giving lands that could not be cultivated. The attention of the Surveyor General had early been called to the poor quality of the land in this district by General Irvine. In a letter to General Armstrong, dated at Carlisle, July 18th, 1786, he recommended that all the surveys made by John Henderson be rejected by Council, and that Major Alexander be appointed to lay off an equal number of lots in other parts of the reserved tracts without being confined to any particular district. He further says in the same letter, "if the Surveyor General has not found my letter in which I complained of John Henderson's surveys as improper to be accepted—he has had sufficient verbal testimony as well from me as sundry other persons to justify his informing Council that the land is not such as the Assembly intended the troops should get, or they could possibly think of receiving, particularly as he surveyed all had and left a large quantity of good land within his district." The views of General Irvine were not fully adopted, though his representations did to a certain extent influence the action of Council. In the preparations for the drawing of the lottery, one hundred and thirty-four tracts of 200 acres each, lying in the eastern part of the district, nearest to the Allegheny river, and now part of Butler county, were stricken from the scheme, and the numbers representing the tracts not placed in the wheels. By this action of Council the district became known as the "Struck District," and was ever after so called. The struck numbers remained out of the wheel until after the act of April 2, 1802, the title of which was "An act to complete the benevolent intention of the legislature of this Commonwealth, by distributing the donation lands to all who are entitled thereto," became a law. The preamble to this Act set forth that some of the officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line had not received their donation land, and that it was represented that amongst the lots in the tenth district, for which the owners had received patents and which they had released as being in the State of New York, and received other lots in lieu thereof, many were still in Pennsylvania, and also that there were a number of other lots within the bounds of the donated surveys not numbered, returned or otherwise appropriated. Under this act it was made the duty of the Land Officers to ascertain the number of such lots of each description that remained undrawn and not otherwise aprpopriated or which, having been drawn, had not been applied for within the time prescribed by law, and to cause numbers corresponding to each lot to be made and placed in the wheels from which they were to draw on application being made to them by persons entitled to the donation. Acting under this law the Board of Property, which by this section of the same act was given the same powers relative to donation lands that it exercised over other lands within the Commonwealth, decided to include the lots of the "Struck District," and put corresponding numbers in the wheels. These numbers remained in the wheels until the act of March 25, 1805, directing them to be withdrawn and not again put in. During the years 1803-4-5, many of the lots had been drawn, and patents for them granted, in some instances causing trouble and litigation. Presuming the lands in the eastern part of the district to be vacant and open to settlement and improvement under the act of April 3, 1792, many settlers had gone into the locality and made valuable improvements that interfered with the surveys of the donation lots, thus of course involving patentees of donation land and actual settlers in disputes and expensive law-suits. To prevent such undesirable and unfortunate results the act of 1805 was passed. The tickets were taken out of the wheels as directed by the law, and the undrawn lots of the "Struck District" thereafter remained a part of the unappropriated lands north and west of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers and Conewango Creek, open to sale and settlement.

In order to enable the Land Officers and the Board of Property to execute the duties enjoined upon them by the act of 1802, the Secretary of the Commonwealth was directed to transfer all records relating to the donation lands to the Surveyor General's Office, and by the same act the Board of Property was authorized to direct patents to be issued to the widow, heir or heirs of any deceased officer or soldier on satisfactory proof of their right being made.

The act of March 24, 1785, seemed to require the beneficiaries under its provisions to participate in the drawing in person. To do so was no doubt a serious inconvenience to many, while others, who could not afford the expense of a journey to Philadelphia, would be entirely deprived of the benefits of the act. Be this as it may, it was soon discovered that many persons had not received their land and in consequence of this condition of the distribution, the Legislature by an act passed April 6, 1792, directed the land officers, on the second day of July following, to draw lots for every person entitled to donation land, who had not received the same, agreeably to the list submitted by the Comptroller to the Supreme Executive Council, the same as if the person thus entitled to land was present; and patents were to be granted to such persons or their legal representatives as in other cases. It was also ascertained that there were other persons who had served in the Pennsylvania Line entitled to the donation, but whose names, from some unexplained cause, did not appear in the list prepared by the Comptroller General in 1786. To remedy this defect and enable these persons to receive their quota of land, the Legislature passed an important act relating to them on the 17th of April, 1795. This act directed the Comptroller General to prepare a complete list of such persons entitled to lands whose names were not included in the first list, together with their rank and the quantity of land each should receive. This list was to be transmitted to the Surveyor General, the Receiver General and the Secretary of the Land Office, and it was made their duty then to employ a suitable person to prepare tickets and place them in wheels in the same manner as had been done for the first drawing. No greater number of tickets were to be placed in the wheel than would give to each his quantity of land. After these preparations were complete the claimants could attend the drawing in person to draw their lots, or authorize an agent to draw for them, and for such persons as did not attend in person, or by agent, the Surveyor General, Receiver General and Secretary of the Land Office were authorized to draw. When the drawing was finished a report was to be made to the Governor, who was directed to prepare and deliver the patents at the expense of the State. The legal representatives of deceased persons entitled to the benefits of the act, were permitted to draw lots, or have lots drawn for them, the same as such deceased persons might have done if living. The time allowed for making application under the act was one year from its passage, with a proviso that persons "beyond Sea, or out of the United States," shall have two years, and persons serving in the army of the United States at the time of its passage should have three years, of which the Surveyor General was to give notice for six weeks in one of the newspapers of Philadelphia, and in one in each county of the State in which newspapers were published. This was followed by an act passed April 11, 1799, providing among other things for the authentication of claims by the Comptroller General, Register General and State Treasurer, who were to inquire into their lawfulness, ascertain whether they remained unsatisfied, and in each case to transmit to the Secretary of the Land Office a certificate stating whether the claim should be allowed or rejected, the certificate to be conclusive. After 1805, aside from a number of acts granting donations of land to certain individuals for special reasons, there was no further legislation in reference to these lands of any importance. A question of succession had arisen in the case of an officer who had been killed in the service. He was unmarried, and the land that fell to his share was claimed by a brother as heir-at-law. The Supreme Court decided the claim to be good. The Legislature then, on the 11th of March, 1809, passed an act that no patent was thereafter to issue for donation lands except to the widow or children of any deceased officer or soldier who died or was killed in service.

There had been extensions of the time for filing applications, year by year, until the final limitation as fixed in the previous year, expired on the 1st day of April, 1810. No further applications were received after that date though patents for lots that had previously been drawn continued to be freely granted for some years longer. After the drawing had been closed, there still remained in the wheels a number of undrawn tickets, and by the act of March 26, 1813, the Legislature made provision for the sale and settlement of such of them as should remain undrawn on the first day of October following. It was provided that a person who had made an improvement and settlement, resided with his family on the lot three years previous to the passing of the act, and cleared, fenced and cultivated at least ten acres of ground; or a person who should after the first day of October make an improvement and actual settlement by erecting a dwelling house, reside with a family on the lot three years from the date of the settlement, and clear, fence and cultivate at least ten acres of ground, could receive a patent for such donation lot, by paying into the State Treasury at the rate of one dollar and fifty cents an acre with interest from three years after the settlement was made, and the usual office fees. The settlement first made and continued, or thereafter made and continued, gave an inception of title to the person making it. These terms are somewhat similar in character to those provided in act of April 3, 1792, for the sale of the unappropriated parts of the lands lying within the donation districts, except that the price fixed for such lands was only twenty cents an acre. This difference in price must be accounted for in the supposition that the lands surveyed for the soldiers were far superior in quality that the other unappropriated parts of the territory originally set apart for donation purposes. The price for the undrawn lots continued to be one dollar and fifty cents an acre until February 25, 1819, when it was reduced to fifty cents an acre. The rate of fifty cents was continued until March 31, 1845, at which time the terms were made in all respects the same as for other vacant lands in the same districts.

This concludes the sketch of the Donation Lands of Pennsylvania and the mode in which they were allotted and conveyed to the persons who came within the provisions of the grant; and we trust it may prove of interest to the readers of this report. The benefaction was a most worthy and patriotic one to a line of gallant soldiers who served their country well, and endured much in aiding to achieve liberty for the American Colonies, from which has since grown our mighty and beneficent American Republic. The Pennsylvania Line was an important factor in producing grant results, and rewards to such soldiers were well bestowed.

PENNSYLVANIA

DEPRECIATION LANDS.

SURVEYED IN 1783–1785.

[This paper, prepared by Major Robert H. Foster, of the Land Office, Department of Internal Affairs, and published in the Report of 1892, referring to a subject little understood, is given in connection with documents heretofore given.]

DEPRECIATION LANDS.

"What do you mean by depreciation lands?" is an inquiry that often comes to persons connected with the Land Department of Pennsylvania, and it has thought that a short history of these lands would not prove an uninteresting feature.

During the long war of the American revolution, 1776 to 1783, upon the success of which depended the independence of the united colonies, the State of Pennsylvania had, for those times, a large body of soldiers in the service of the country that was known as the "Pennsylvania Line." These troops were paid for their service in continental money, which was issued in large amounts, and which, in the privations of those trying years, and the doubts that surrounded the outcome of the struggle, became greatly depreciated in value as compared with the value of gold or silver, and with this depreciation, of course, there followed an enormous enhancement in the prices of everything pertaining to the necessities of the people. This unavoidable and unfortunate condition of affairs necessarily entailed great hardships and annoyance upon all who were compelled to receive this almost worthless "promise to pay" for lands, labor and commodities. It bore with especial hardships upon the soldiers serving in the field, and was the fruitful source of so much discontent and dissatisfaction as to seriously threaten the success of the noble cause in which they were engaged.

In this extremity, it may be said, to the honor of Pennsylvania, that the General Assembly of the State, with a forethought that was wise, and a patriotism that was commendable, began at an early day to consider the alarming and critical conditions that confronted the people and the country, and to devise, as best they could, such measures of relief as would tend to arrest threatening dangers, allay the prevailing discontent of the soldiers and encourage them to continue, with re-invigorated energy, the fight for independence. But it was not until the eighteenth day of December, 1780, that these deliberations of the General Assembly assumed anything like a definite form in the way of legislative enactment. On that day the first act was passed to settle upon a basis of gold and silver the depreciation in the pay of the officers and enlisted men of the Pennsylvania Line. The act is entitled "An act to settle and adjust the accounts of the troops of the State in the service of the United States," etc. The preamble to the act is in these words: "Whereas, from a variety of causes, the United States have not been able to comply with their engagements heretofore made to the officers and private men of the Pennsylvania line, which hath occasioned great injury to those troops to whose virtuous exertions America is much indebted," and then follows the enactment: "Be it therefore enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the representatives of the freemen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and by the authority of the same, That the Supreme Executive Council be and they are hereby authorized and directed to appoint three auditors to settle the depreciation of the pay accounts of all the officers and private men of the Pennsylvania line from the first day of January, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and eighty, and the said auditors, or any two of them, are hereby empowered and directed to estimate in specie all sums of continental money received by the said officers and private men on account of their pay within the period aforesaid agreeably to a scale of depreciation hereinafter mentioned and contained.

"And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said auditors, or any two of them, are hereby empowered and directed to give to the officers and private men to whom pay or (?) such settlement as aforesaid shall be found due, certificates specifying the sums due in specie, which certificates shall be received and considered as equal to specie in payment of the estates hereinafter mentioned and contained."

Other sections of this act provided that the certificates of depreciation should be received as specie in payment of the confiscated estates of persons attainted with treason and by the officers of the Land Office for unlocated lands. The act also provided that moneys received from the sale of confiscated estates and paid into the treasury should be held as a reserved fund for the redemption of the certificates. A scale of depreciation, as indicated in the first section of the act, was provided and made the rule by which the auditors were to be governed in making settlements with the soldiers. The scale began with the month of January, 1777, at a rate of 1½ to 1, and ended with the month of July, 1780, at which time the depreciation as compared with specie had reached the enormous difference of 64½ to 1.

The scale by months was as follows: 1777—January, 1½; February, 1½; March, 2; April, 2½; June, 2½; July, 3; August, 3; September, 3; October, 3; November, 3; December, 4. 1778—January 4; February, 5; March, 5; April, 6; May, 5; June, 4; July, 4; August, 5; September, 5; October, 5; November, 6; December, 6. 1779—January, 8; February, 10; March, 10½; April, 17; May, 24; June, 20; July, 19; August, 20; September, 24; October 30; November, 38½; December, 41½. 1780—January, 41½; February, 47½; March, 61½; April, 61½; May, 59; June, 61½; July, 64½.

The settlements with the soldiers were made by the auditors in accordance with the above scale of depreciation and certificates issued to all persons in the service entitled to receive them. By subsequent legislation provision was made to redeem these certificates, and all were duly redeemed or paid in full at a later period.

One of the first acts of the General Assembly providing for the redemption of the certificates of depreciation issued under the act of the eighteenth of December, 1780, was passed the twelfth day of March, 1783, and is found in Smith's Laws of Pennsylvania, Vol. ii, page 62. This act provides for the sale of certain lands for the purpose of redeeming and paying the certificates of depreciation given to the officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania line or their representatives. The preamble to this act reads as follows:

"Whereas, It was enacted by a law of this Commonwealth, passed the eighteenth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty, entitled 'An act to settle and adjust the accounts of the troops of the state in the service of the United States, and for other purposes therein mentioned, that the certificates of depreciation given to the officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania line should be receivable at the Land office of this State, equal to gold and silver, in the payment of purchase money of unlocated lands, if the possessor or possessors of the same should think proper to purchase such lands."

The second section of this act provides, "That for the more speedy and effectual complying with the intentions of the law aforesaid, there be, and hereby is, located and laid off a certain tract of land as follows: Beginning where the western boundary of this State crosses the Ohio river; thence up the said river to Fort Pitt; thence up the Allegheny river to the mouth of Moguthoghtitum creek,* thence by a west line to the western boundary of the State; thence south by said boundary to the place of beginning, reserving to the use of the State three thousand acres in an oblong of not less than one mile in depth from the Allegheny and Ohio rivers, and extending up and down the said rivers, from opposite Fort Pitt so far as may be necessary to include same, and the further quantity of three thousand acres on the Ohio, and on both sides of the mouth of Beaver creek, including Fort Mackintosh; all of which remaining tract of land, as aforesaid, is hereby appropriated as a farther fund for the purpose of redeeming the certificates aforesaid, and shall for that purpose be laid out and disposed of as follows, that is to say, the Surveyor General of this State shall, according to such directions as may be given to him by the Supreme Executive Council, cause the aforesaid tract of land to be laid out into lots of not less than two hundred acres, nor more than three hundred and fifty acres each, numbering the same lots numerically on the draught or plot of the country aforesaid; and shall as soon as the same, or one hundred lots thereof, are surveyed, together with the Secretary of the Land Office and the Receiver General, proceed to sell the same lots in numerical order, at such times and places and under such regulations as shall be appointed by the Supreme Executive Council, the full consideration bid at such sales shall be paid into the Receiver General's office, either in gold or silver or in the certificates aforesaid, upon the full payment of which consideration and the expenses of surveying, together with all fees of the different offices, patents shall be issued in the usual form to the several buyers or vendees, and the different sums in specie that may be paid into the Receiver General's office shall be paid over by him to the treasury of this State for the purpose of redeeming such certificates as may remain unsatisfied at the end of such sales."

The lands thus described and set apart for the purpose indicated in that portion of the act last quoted lie north and west of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers, and they comprise at present parts of the wealthy and populous counties of Allegheny, Armstrong, Butler, Beaver and Lawrence, and embrace an area approximately of eleven hundred and twenty five square miles, or 720,000 acres.

At the time the act of March 12, 1783, became a law the Indian claim to the section of the State therein described still existed. The Indians were jealous of their rights and restive under any real or fancied encroachments that might be made upon them, and it required the exercise of great care, caution and prudence on the part of the authorities to avert trouble on the northern and western boundaries of the State; and this they did not always succeed in doing, as many adventurous spirits, pushing far out into the unsettled wilderness discovered to their sorrow. Fortunately, however, by the treaty of October, 1784, with the Six Nations, at Fort Stanwix, and that of January, 1785, with the Wyandots and Delawares, at Fort McIntosh, the Indian title was extinguished to all the remaining territory within the then acknowledged limits of the State which had not been previously purchased. The boundaries of that great northwestern section of the State covered by this purchase may be briefly described as follows: Beginning on the east bank of the east branch of the Susquehanna river where it crosses the northern boundary of the State in Bradford county; thence down the East Branch to the mouth of Towanda creek; thence up Towanda creek to its headwaters; thence by a straight line west to the headwaters of Pine creek; thence down Pine creek to the West Branch of the Susquehanna; thence up the West Branch to Cherry Tree, in Clearfield county; thence by a straight line to Kittanning, on the Allegheny river, in Armstrong county; thence down the Allegheny river to the Ohio river; thence down the Ohio river to where it crosses the western boundary of the State; thence north along the western boundary to Lake Erie, thence east along the northern boundary of the State to the beginning; and within this territory at the present day we find the counties of Tioga, Potter, McKean, Warren, Crawford, Venango, Forest, Clarion, Elk, Jefferson, Cameron, Butler, Lawrence and Mercer and parts of the counties of Bradford, Clinton, Clearfield, Indiana, Armstrong, Allegheny, Beaver and Erie.

It would appear by a letter from President Dickinson to the Surveyor General, found in Vol. x, page 53, of the Pennsylvania Archives, that the Supreme Executive Council hesitated somewhat, through fear of exciting Indian hostility, in proceeding immediately to carry into effect the act of March 12, 1783. The letter reads as follows: "The intelligence received by us of hostilities committed on the frontier of this State by Indians induced us to defer giving you directions for surveying and laying out in lots, the tract of land first described in the law, entitled 'An act for the sale of certain lands,' etc., passed on the twelfth day of last March, until we have taken some previous steps for facilitating the execution of that measure, and had reason to hope that circumstances were so far matured as to be more favorable to the design of the Legislature."

It was not long, however, until a different policy prevailed, as we are informed by a letter from Secretary Armstrong under date of June 19, 1783, to General William Irvine, then commanding officer of Fort Pitt. General Irvine was informed that council had come to a determination to make sale of the lands appropriated by law for the redemption of the depreciation certificates, and had instructed the Surveyor General "to proceed with all possible dispatch with the first steps of that business." General Irvine was also informed that the Surveyor General had been directed to call upon him for advice and assistance.

These instructions to the Surveyor General were given on the tenth day of June, 1783, nine days previous to the letter to General Irvine, and on the twenty-eighth day of August the Supreme Executive Council is informed by a letter of John Lukens, S. G., that "agreeable to your order * * * a number of surveyors have been appointed and received their orders for surveying the land, * * * and are gone forward on that service, and the others are ready to follow, so as to be there the tenth of next month." In the same letter a request was made for an order to General Irvine "to afford them a guard while in that service (or at least while they run the west and north boundaries of said tract), as they look on it not very safe to proceed without."

The depreciation tract was divided into five districts, as represented in the accompanying map, and a surveyor appointed for each -Alexander McClean for the first district, Daniel Leet for the second district, Nathaniel Breading, William Alexander, Samuel Nicholson, Ephraim Douglass and Samuel Jones for the third district, sub-divided into five parts; James Cunningham for the fourth district, and Joshua Elder for the fifth district.

The surveys in these districts were begun in the summer of 1785, and were not all completed until the July of 1789. In addition to the separate surveys of each tract, there are on file in the department complete connected drafts of the surveys of each district, except that of Mr. McClean's, and it is not known why a draft of his district was not returned.

In Daniel Leet's district, No. 2, there are two connected drafts—one containing 143 tracts and the other 224 tracts—the first surveys—143 tracts—were made during the months of April, May, June and July, 1785, and the others during the summer of 1786. In Nathaniel Breading's part of district No. 3, the connected draft contains 126 tracts, the surveys of which were made in the month of June, 1785. In William Alexander's part of district No. 3 the connected draft contains 139 tracts, surveyed during the months of June and July, 1785. In Samuel Nicholson's part of district No. 3 there are two connected drafts—one containing 77 tracts, surveyed in 1785, and the other containing 65 tracts. Time of survey not given. In Ephraim Douglas' part of district No. 3 the connected draft contains 215 tracts, surveyed in 1786. In Samuel Jones' part of district No. 3 there are three connected drafts—the first containing 37 tracts, the second 63 tracts and the third 48 tracts, making in all 148 tracts, the time of surveys not given in the first two. The 48 tracts were surveyed in July, 1789. In James Cunningham's district No. 4 the connected draft shows 485 tracts. These tracts were surveyed during the months of July, August, September and October, 1785, and the months of May, June, August, September and October, 1787. In Joshua Elder's district No. 5 there are two connected drafts—one containing 338 tracts, surveyed during the summer of 1785, and the other containing 193 tracts, surveyed in the months of August and September, 1786.

By the act of Assembly, the Surveyor General, the Secretary of the Land Office and the Receiver General of the State were authorized as commissioners under the direction of the Supreme Executive Council to proceed to sell in numerical order the lots as soon as the drafts or plots of the same, or "one hundred lots thereof were returned." The surveys first returned were those of a part of Daniel Leet's district No. 2. The sales were to be made by auction and the question then arose as to whether the land should be sold by the acre or by the tract. The Supreme Executive Council directed the Land Office, by a letter dated the eighteenth of November, 1785, "first * * * that the land should be sold by the acre; second, that the city auctioneer be employed to sell them, and, third, that no warrant directing a return of survey should issue." With these preliminary details arranged, the officers designated in the act proceeded under instructions which had been previously given to them to make the first sales of these lands.

The first sales were made in Philadelphia on the twenty-first and twenty-third days of November, 1785, and comprised 143 tracts of district No. 2, surveyed as has been before said, by Daniel Leet. These tracts contained in the aggregate 32,202 acres, and brought £13,987 14s., an average price slightly more than eight shillings five pence an acre. The bids varied from fifty shillings an acre down to six pence an acre, but as the price then fixed by law for lands within the purchase of 1784 was thirty pounds per cent., or six shillings an acre, the average of the sale was regarded as very fair. The sale of the tracts in Daniel Leet's district was followed on the twenty-eighth and thirtieth days of the same month by sales of 126 tracts, containing 32,034 acres in Nathaniel Breading's part of district No. 3, bringing an aggregate sum of £4,042 17s. 3d. The prices at which these tracts were sold varied from twenty shillings six pence an acre down to six pence, an average of about two shillings six and one-half pence an acre. The low average of this sale, as compared with the average in Leet's district, seems not to have been entirely satisfactory to the commissioners charged with the duty of conducting them.

In a letter dated the sixth of December, 1785, to President Franklin, of the Supreme Executive Council, in relation to this sale, they say that "when the amount of sales in this district is added to that of Leet's the whole will average only 5s. 6d. per acre, being a less sum than is now received in the Land Office for lands in the new purchase. Perhaps, your honors will esteem it eligible to postpone the further sale of these lands till towards the beginning of the next session of the assembly, and then to begin with a district above Fort Pitt, either Cunningham's or Elder's, both being very good districts." It is not known whether council was influenced by the representation of the commissioners or not, but no further sales were made until the month of March, 1786. On the first, second and eleventh days of that month, 139 tracts in William Alexander's part of district No. 3, containing 32,153 acres, were sold at prices that varied from eight shillings an acre down to three pence an acre, bringing in the aggregate £1,717 17s. 10d., the average being a little more than one shilling an acre. On the eighth and ninth days of the same month, 142 tracts in Samuel Nicholson's part of district No. 3, containing 33,501 acres, were sold at prices which varied from fifteen shillings nine pence an acre down to three pence an acre, bringing in the aggregate £2,791 4s. 10d., an average of slightly above one shilling seven pence an acre. From the eleventh to the twenty-second day of March, 309 tracts in James Cunningham's district No. 4, containing 71,309 acres, were sold at prices that varied from sixteen shillings six pence an acre down to three pence an acre, bringing in the aggregate £5,672 3s. 10d., also an average of a little more than one shilling seven pence an acre. On the twenty-seventh day of the same month there was a sale of 47 tracts, containing 13,047 acres, in Alexander McClean's district No. 1, at prices that ran from nine shillings three pence an acre down to three pence an acre, bringing in the aggregate £984 11s. 4d., an average of one shilling six pence an acre. The sales at Philadelphia were then suspended for a time and were resumed at Lancaster, on the fifth day of the following month of June, when 63 tracts in Samuel Jones' part of district No. 3 were sold, these tracts containing 13,114 acres, and the prices received for them varied from nineteen shillings nine pence an acre down to three pence an acre. In the aggregate they brought £1,414 7s. 3d., the average being slightly above two shillings two pence an acre. The next sales were again held in Philadelphia, where, between the sixth and twenty-seventh days of September, 336 tracts in Joshua Elder's district No. 5, containing 82,337 acres, were sold at prices that varied from seventeen shillings six pence down to three pence an acre. These tracts brought an aggregate sum of £9,439 5s. 5d., an average slightly above two shillings three and one-half pence an acre. A very large number of the sales in this district were set aside by order of the Supreme Executive Council, as appears by the record book in this department. In March, 1786, by order of council, there was also a resale of 70 tracts of Nathaniel Breeding, part of district No. 3, the original purchasers having failed to comply with the terms of sale. These tracts contained 17,874 acres and they brought at this second sale an aggregate sum of £487 2s. 7d., an average of a little more than six pence an acre. After the sales of the tracts of Elder's district in September, 1786, no further effort was made to dispose of any of these lands until the month of March, 1787. A return of 200 additional tracts had been recived from Daniel Leet, and the commissioners were then directed to sell them. The sale was held, but the results fell far short of the expectations of the officials. The report of these sales, or of such tracts as were offered, made to council by Francis Johnston, under date of March 12, 1787, reads as follows: "I beg leave to report to Councils that pursuant to public notice given, I proceeded to the sale of the residue of Leet's district of depreciation lands at the Old Coffey House on the 7th inst., but to my great surprise and mortification, the 27 lots which were sold on that day averaged only £5 8s. 4d. per 100 acres. The sales I then postponed till the 10th following when but three lots were sold at the rate of 25s. per 100 acres only, or 3d. per acre. Upon the whole I cannot help thinking that until the operation of the present low sales of the donation lands shall cease, no more public lands so remote from the the city can be sold at auction to any advantage.

No sales were made of the tracts surveyed and returned by Ephraim Douglas in part of district No. 3, and all sales of depreciation lands by auction ceased with the last sale of 30 tracts in Leet's district made in March, 1787. The following recapitulation in tabular form shows the number of tracts sold in each district, by whom surveyed, the aggregate quantity in acres sold, and the amount which the lands brought in Pennsylvania currency, one pound being the equivalent of $2.66⅔.

RECAPITULATION.

The general average per acre of the above sales is slightly in excess of two shillings six and one-half pence, or about thirty-four cents, and it was no doubt the low price offered for these lands, as compared with the price fixed by law (then £30 per hundred or 6 shillings per acre) that determined the Supreme Executive Council to abandon the method of selling them by public sale.

The sum given in the statement, £40,358, does not correctly represent the amount received by the State, but is considerably above it. This is owing to the fact that many of the purchasers failed to make payment, and for that cause a large number of the sales were not completed, and consequently were set aside by order of council. The books of the land office show that the amount actually received was £32,927, which, at the rate of $2.66⅔ per pound, represents $87,805.33, and patents were duly granted to all purchasers who made payments as required by the terms of sale.

The lands within the depreciation district that remained unsold were subsequently opened to actual settlement and improvement under the provisions of the act of April 4, 1792, entitled "An act for the sale of vacant lands within this Commonwealth," and of later enactments, especially those of 1811 and 1813.

The Indians had continued to be exceedingly troublesome on the western boundary and it was not until after General Wayne's treaty with them in 1795, that it became safe for settlers with their families to enter upon the lands north and west of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers and Conewango creek.

But special provision was made in the acts mentioned for the settlement and improvement of such parts of these lands as had not been appropriated to public and charitable use, and as soon as the western frontier of the State had become pacified, and there was no longer fear of Indian incursions, there was a rapid influx of settlers to occupy them. The price fixed in 1792 for lands north and west of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers and Conewango creek was seven pounds ten shillings, or twenty dollars per hundred acres, and it has remained the same to the present time. This rate, however, does not apply to the undrawn donation lots.
